DOMBAAS TAKEN, NAZIS SAY AS TWO ARMIES JOIN FORCES

$47,887.40 IN, FUND DRIVE'S NEAR VICTORY

Majors Report Only $9,600 to Go 24 Hours After Workers Get Go-Ahead Signal.

SURE SUCCESS PREDICTED

Mansfield will go over the top again in its Community Fund campaign!

That seemed a safe prediction today as, 24 hours after workers received the green light to "go," they reported $47,887.40 pledged.

The first report was made this noon at a luncheon meeting for majors at the Evergreen cafeteria. Clyde K. Smaltz, general chairman of the drive for the second consecutive year, who piloted the drive to success last year said that the figure was the largest ever turned in for the first day's work in any Mansfield Community Fund drive, and that it hung up a record.

With a goal of $57,500 today's report leaves only $9,613 to be raised.

"There is no doubt in my mind today that we will not only reach our goal before the end of the week, but will top it," Smaltz told his workers today. "I hope we will, for the goal set up this year was a minimum figure under which our agencies could operate without seriously crippling their programs and whatever is pledged beyond that minimum will be allocated among the agencies."

One division had already topped its quota. Industry, which carries more than 50 per cent of the Community Fund year after year, had subscribed $33,744 on a quota of $30,625. Nor is today's figure the final one, according to Harold W. Arlin, major of the industrial division, who said that he still had several industrial plants yet to report.

The next largest report today

TALK RELIEF

County, City Officials Go to Columbus for Conference.

Six county and city officials will confer this afternoon in Columbus with William H. Hartsough, state relief consultant, on a relief program for 1940.

Hartsough gave no indication of what he planned to discuss. County officials were of the opinion, however, that he would ask them for suggestions for changing the state relief set-up. Under the present plan the state provides funds for about 40 per cent of the relief costs.

County Commissioners C. L. Mitchell and Ray Hout, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, County Engineer Howard C. Sword, City Engineer W. C. Statler, Mansfield, and Mayor William Morris of Shelby were scheduled to attend.

The city and county engineers were invited because of their work with WPA projects in connection with the relief program

LABOR RULING

Ford Ordered to Take Back St. Louis Strikers.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The labor board ruled today that the Ford Motor company had violated the Wagner act at its St. Louis plant and ordered the company to reinstate with back pay 91 employes who participated in a 1937 strike.

The board also ordered the company to bargain upon request with CIO's United Auto Workers union as the exclusive representative of the St. Louis plant employes.

IN DOG HOUSE

Missing Boy Merely Sleeping With Canine Pal.

CHARLESTON, S. C.—The distracted parents of Wecky Wolfe, 5, hunted high and low for him without avail. After several hours, as they were considering calling police, in walked Wecky rubbing his eyes.

"I got tired and crawled into the dog house with Buddy," he explained.

Sure of Success

Clyde K Smaltz, general chairman of the Mansfield Community Fund drive for the second consecutive year, seemed certain today to duplicate his victory of last year, when more than 75 per cent of this year's goal was reported 24 hours after the drive opened. The drive is scheduled to close Saturday.

THREE INJURED IN ACCIDENTS

Motorcyclist, Two Drivers Are Victims of Traffic Crashes In Mansfield Area.

An Ashland youth was in General hospital here today suffering from injuries received yesterday afternoon in one of three accidents reported in this vicinity yesterday and early today

He is Ronald Hershler, 19, and was injured when the cycle he was riding struck a chuck hole in route 545 four miles north of Mansfield, throwing him from the machine. Hospital attendants said he suffered a fractured right shoulder, possible skull fracture, and abrasions of the face and head. His condition was reported as "fair"

Two Plymouth and Shelby motorists received minor injuries when their cars collided at 5:25 a. m. today on route 39, two miles north of Mansfield, highway patrolmen reported. The drivers were Robert Ritting, 41, R. D. 1 Plymouth, who received bruises of the right knee and chest, and Parker L. Benedict, 31, of Shelby, who suffered body bruises and a cut of the right knee.

Witnesses told patrolmen Benedict struck Ritting as the latter was making a left turn Riding with Benedict were Norman Zehner, Bert Koontz and Wayne Frakes all of Shelby None was injured.

Two other motorists escaped injuries in an auto-truck accident at 5:50 p. m. Monday on route 42, three miles south of Mansfield. They were Marcella R Cooper, 26, of Louisville, Ky., and John Mui, jr., 28, 5 Raymond avenue, Mansfield. Witnesses told patrolmen that Miss Cooper, traveling south, collided with a truck driven by Mui, as she attempted to pass a car driven by Ralph Hershner, 23, of Bellville. The Hershner car was not involved in the accident, patrolmen said.

CHILD RESCUED FROM STARVING

Cleveland Baby Gains Pound a Day at Hospital.

CLEVELAND —(UP)— Three-year-old Marilyn Bade, whose plight was discovered when her younger brother starved to death, has gained six pounds in a little more than a week at City hospital—almost a pound a day.

The child weighed only 17 pounds when she was admitted to the hospital April 20; today she weighed 23. At first she was so weak she could not feed herself, but she has gained strength.

Marilyn's two-year-old brother, Raymond, died a week ago Friday of "starvation—pure and simple," according to Coroner S. R. Gerber, who said the boy's 11-pound body was "nothing but skin and bones"

DIE IN FLAMES

Two Philadelphia Men Trapped In "Row House" Fire.

PHILADELPHIA —(UP)— Two men were burned to death and five other persons were injured when fire swept a "row house" in West Philadelphia today.

The victims were Harry Rothstein, 26, and Oscar Bloch, 28. They were trapped on the second floor of the blazing dwelling and apparently were overcome before firemen could reach them.

CONFESSES TO KILLING OHIO SUGAR WORKER

LIE DETECTOR HELPS

Tells of Striking Fremont Man In Quarrel About Work After Drinking Beer.

BULLETIN

FREMONT — (AP) — Alpha Woessner, 31, clad in U. S. army khaki, pleaded innocent to first degree murder today after confessing, Prosecutor A. L. Hyzer said, that he fatally beat Walter Snyder, 24, in an argument over a job. He was bound over to the grand jury.

FREMONT—(AP)—Prosecutor A. L. Hyzer announced today that Alpha Woessner, 31, had confessed to the slaying of Walter Snyder, 24-year-old sugar refinery worker, last Oct. 31.

Woessner signed a written statement after he was questioned with the aid of a lie detector at the Toledo police station.

The prosecutor said Woessner, when informed investigators learned he and Snyder engaged in a fist fight before the latter disappeared, declared:

"All right, I killed him. I'll give the prosecutor a statement.

Snyder's bruised body was found in the Sandusky river three miles north of Fremont Dec. 7. One eye was badly hurt and the nose was broken

Woessner, who enlisted in the army Nov. 8, was returned to Fremont two weeks ago from Fort Sheridan, Ill., for questioning.

The accused related, Hyzer said, that he entered a Fremont tavern the night of Oct 31 and joined Snyder who was drinking beer.

"I had two bottles of beer and we got into an argument," Hyzer quoted Woessner. The prosecutor said the argument involved a job of calking windows which Snyder accused Woessner of taking from him.

The confession said the fight occurred in an alley.

MERCURY AT 73

Reading Hits Top for Year; Tornado Rips Illinois.

Mansfield, with a thermometer reading of 73 degrees, had the warmest weather of the year yesterday, and the weatherman indicated today that spring is here to stay.

There may be light showers tonight, while Wednesday will be cloudy and cooler, the forecast said. The temperature at noon today was 64, and the average for the past 24 hours was 62, about 10 degrees above normal.

The season's first "heat wave" brought a baby tornado to central Illinois last yesterday, resulting in the death of one person and causing property damage estimated at $150,000. Fred Weber, 38, blind, was killed when the wind demolished his home.

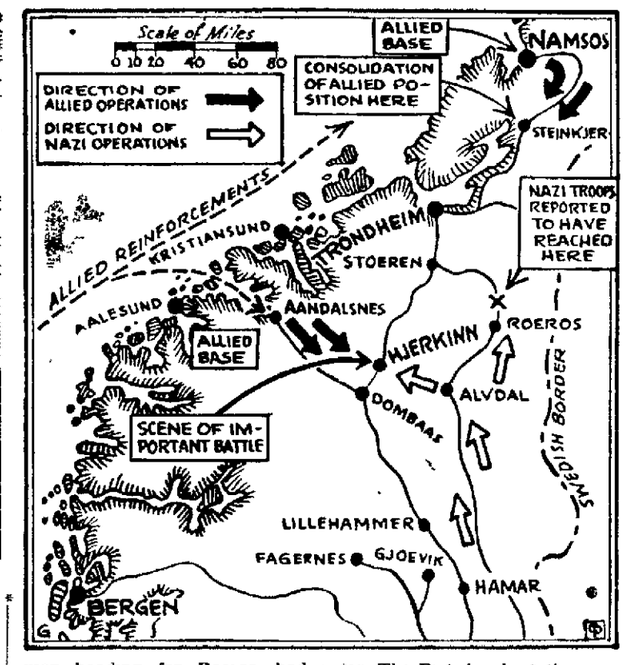
The British admit their position here is "difficult" but say operations in the Namsos area are "in hand" and that Narvik (far north, not shown on map) operations are "going well"



Poles and Czechs Join Allied Army In Norway

Long Awaited Test of Strength Seems About to Materialize; Offensive Expected Soon Against Nazis.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Norway has now become a battleground for almost all the armies of Europe and a gigantic Allied offensive may soon be expected to halt the German advance, Barbro Alving, noted woman war correspondent of the International News Service reveals in the following vivid dispatch from the fighting line.)

(INS Staff Correspondent)

ON THE NAMSOS FRONT, Norway—Norway's tragic role as the battlefield for all of Europe's war was emphasized today with disclosure that Polish and Czech legions have joined the ever-expanding Allied ranks of fighting men.

To participate in the major battle that is now developing in central Norway, these hard-bitten troops are now marching down shell-pocked Norwegian roads and through the ruins of burned Norwegian towns to cross swords at last with soldiers of that power which made them troops and men without a country—Nazi Germany.

They were landed Saturday night at Namsos, these once proud and free Czechs and Poles, and according to the testimony of a British officer at Allied field headquarters, they have swung into the front line of battle with the British, Norwegians and French who are ready now for the longed-for and long-awaited test of strength.

There is every reason to believe that the Nazis, generally speaking, have advanced their last kilometer before a huge Allied offensive by land, sea and air is to be launched to break the back, if possible, of the German invasion and occupation.

The front-line north of Steinkjer has now been stabilized. It is a Franco-Norwegian line rather than a British one. This is because the English troops are not equipped with the skis essential for operations in the heavy snow.

Lacking this equipment, a British battalion was torn to pieces last week. Its members have now

FATHER DROWNS

Parent of Seven Caught Under Mohican Spillway Current.

ASHLAND—David Watkin, 43, Akron, father of seven children, was drowned 15 miles southeast of here at 3 p. m. yesterday while fishing with two friends below the spillway of the Mohican dam.

According to Ashland County Sheriff L. D. Hammond, Watkin was in a rowboat with one of his friends setting trout lines about 30 feet from the bank and was knocked from the boat into about 12 or 14 feet of water by a wire stretched across the stream for the lines.

The gates of the dam had opened and the current carried Watkin's body about 700 feet downstream where it was later recovered by his two companions and the sheriff

The body was removed to Akron late yesterday for funeral services.

JOIN COP BAND

Orchestra Quits Before Dance to Become Policemen.

KANSAS CITY — Dancers at one of the city's swankier night spots whirled about unsteadily but it was the music that was to blame

Five members of the orchestra gave up their jobs just before the night's program got under way to join the police force and play in the newly organized cop band.

McMINNILLE, Tenn.—Thomas J Barnes, rural letter carrier, found this note, along with an egg, in the box of one of his patrons.

"Mr Barnes, take this egg and leave me a postal card, please"

Barnes obliged, and had the egg next morning for breakfast.

HUSTON FREES ASHLAND YOUTH

Places Raymond Jacobs Under Probation for Three Years For Automobile Theft.

Raymond Jacobs, 24, Ashland, who admitted he stole an automobile in Mansfield April 21 and drove it to Ashland where he wrecked it, was placed on probation for three years today when he was arraigned before Judge C. H Huston in common pleas court.

Jacobs pleaded guilty to a grand jury indictment, which charged operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent. He has been in the Richland county jail since the accident. Attys George W. Biddle, Mansfield and L A Straits, Ashland, represented Jacobs.

Judge Huston placed the youth on probation because he is a first offender and Probate Judge S. H. Boffenmyer of Ashland county asked that he be given another chance. Judge Boffenmyer agreed to approve the youth's monthly reports to Harry Crouse, county probation officer.

Mayor Locke Sets City Baseball Day In Proclamation

Mayor W. J. Locke used the official seal of his office today to express his personal enthusiasm for baseball and a new day in the sport in Mansfield.

He issued the following proclamation making Wednesday afternoon "Baseball Day" in the city:

"In recognition of the fact that Mansfield should have a good baseball team, and in collaboration with public spirited citizens who are giving their time and money toward promoting baseball in Mansfield, I urge all of the citizens of our city to view the parade which is scheduled to start at 7:15 Wednesday evening and attend the baseball game at the Fairground at 8:30 that evening.

"Therefore, I, William J Locke, mayor of the city of Mansfield, Ohio, hereby declare Wednesday afternoon, May 1st, 1940, as Mansfield Baseball Day."

(Signed) W J LOCKE,
Mayor.

STUDENT KILLED

OTTAWA—(AP)—An automobile collision killed Dean Basinger, 19-year-old Ohio State university student from Columbus Grove, and injured two others, five miles east of here. Basinger's brother, Norman, also of Columbus Grove, and Mrs. Mary Davis of Fort Jennings, were taken to a Lima hospital.

President's Mother Recovers From Food Poisoning Attack

NEW YORK — (UP) — A spokesman at the home of Mrs Sara Delano Roosevelt said today that the president's mother was feeling "quite well" and had recovered completely from an attack of food poisoning

The spokesman said Mrs. Roosevelt had spent a quiet night and appeared to have suffered no ill effects from the illness with which she was stricken yesterday while returning by automobile to her home from the New York World's fair.

Mrs Roosevelt rested for two hours in the back room of a Long Island drug store while she was recovering from the nausea which forced her to order her chauffeur to stop and ask for assistance.

Later, she returned to her home in New York where she said,

"I don't know what happened to me. I guess I must have been poisoned."

LYSEKIL, Sweden—(INS)—A convoy of 12 ships, believed to be German, was dispersed in a new battle in the Skagerrak last night, eye-witnesses on the Swedish shore said today.

(By United Press)

BERLIN—The official news agency said today that German troops smashing northward through central Norway had taken the key railroad town of Dombaas after other columns had sliced through Allied defenses and made contact with the German forces from Trondheim.

The high command said that German forces had seriously defeated the Allied troops on the central Norway front and Nazi newspapers reported that the Germans were smashing rapidly ahead in an effort to blast the British and French expeditionary forces from their foothold on the Norwegian coast.

Dombaas was regarded as the most important key to the success or failure of the Allied expeditionary force in central Norway (south of Trondheim) as it controls the entire communications system needed by the British and French to oppose the Germans.

Previously, a German column from Trondheim had made contact, according to the high command, with German troops from the south (Oslo region) and thus circled Stoeren, the only other important rail town

BLAMED: German People Given Responsibility With Leaders

(By United Press)

LONDON—The German people as well as the Nazi leaders are responsible for the prolongation of Europe's war, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the house of commons today.

Chamberlain, who previously had dodged questions regarding progress of the war in Norway, was questioned in the light of a recent speech by Alfred Duff Cooper, former first lord of the admiralty, who said that the Allies must "defeat in battle" the German people as well as the Nazi leaders.

The speech was criticized by some British newspapers on the grounds that it made difficult the possibility of a stable future peace in Europe.

"In my speech at Mansion House on Jan 9," Chamberlain said, "I pointed out that the Allies have no vindictive designs against the German people but that, on the other hand, the German people must realize the responsibility for prolongation of the war and its sufferings was theirs as well as that of the Nazi leaders

"That remains the attitude of his majesty's government."

CLEVER: Disguised Germans Slip Through Allied Lines

By GUNNAR KNUTSSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

ON THE STEINKJER FRONT, NORWAY—German troops have tried all manner of ruses to get through the Norwegian lines, sometimes dressing themselves in Norwegian peasant costumes in attempts to slip past allied guards.

A few, but not many, have been captured, according to Allied officers here. On the way to the front I passed one little prison camp where several German Alpine troops and three aviators were under guard.

I was told German flyers from planes which had been shot or forced down had been interned in this region

It would seem unquestionable that the young Germans fighting here are among the world's best armed and best trained soldiers.

Experienced Alpine troops traveling on skis are now having their innings on this unusual fighting front, and the first impression is that the German soldiers must be regarded as individual arsenals, so well are they equipped.

At the moment only sharp patrol activity occurs here, but the rough forested area of the so-called Steinkjer front is being gradually developed into a battle area

A British communique issued at Namsos said that "British land forces are in touch with the enemy north of Steinkjer."

German warplanes made six attempts to attack Namsos yesterday but were driven off by British anti-aircraft fire. One German plane was shot down, the British said

Republicans Split Over Plans to Stay Out of War

PARTY CHIEFS DIVIDED OVER PEACE POLICY

Democrats Make Harmony Bid In Roosevelt - Garner Texas Campaign.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—While Democrats made a bid for harmony between Roosevelt and Garner forces in Texas, prominent Republicans forecast today that their own platform committee would have its greatest battle over phrasing a "keep out of war" plank.

After a series of talks with Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, the convention keynoter, party leaders here disclosed a difference of opinion over the precise position which Republicans should take on foreign policy.

They generally agreed that the party should promise to keep the United States at peace, but they were split over the best methods of accomplishing that goal.

Senator Vandenberg (R.,Mich.) and others were reported to want a strict "mind-our-own-business" declaration in the platform, while Senator Austin (R., Vt) and some fellow Republicans were said to believe that the United States should give what aid it could to the Allies without itself becoming involved in the European war.

Harmony Move.

Among the Democrats, the Texas harmony move was instigated by Representatives Rayburn and Lyndon Johnson of that state. It envisions a Texas delegation to the Democratic convention instructed for Vice President Garner but pledged to support the administration record and avoid participation in any campaign to "stop Roosevelt."

That procedure was suggested by Rayburn and Johnson in telegrams last night to Texas factional leaders.

"We can not beat the Republican party in November," the messages said, "if we concentrate on beating each other now."

Selection of national convention delegates continued, meanwhile, with a primary election today in Massachusetts On the Republican side, an unpledged slate of 34 headed by Governor Saltonstall was opposed by one filed by William H. McMasters, an old age pension advocate, and pledged to Thomas E. Dewey without the latter's consent.

A Democratic slate was pledged to Postmaster General Farley but state leaders have predicted it would support Mr. Roosevelt if he runs The slate had opposition in some districts.

Rhode Island Republicans in convention yesterday selected eight unpledged delegates, and Oklahoma Republicans chose 22 uninstructed ones.

'Shoot Rapids' to Cross Street Due To Line Repairs

Motorists and pedestrians who attempted to cross the west intersection of Walnut and West Third street this morning had to "shoot the rapids," in the miniature flood caused by an open fire hydrant.

The hydrant was opened this morning and turned on full force, throwing a huge stream of water half way across West Third and flooding the gutter down below West Fourth.

Mayor W. J. Locke explained that a peculiar arrangement of water line valves made it impossible to shut off the lines while new valves were being placed on the West Fourth street paving project, and that in order to relieve pressure while the men worked, the adjacent lines had to be "bled."

The spouting hydrant cut down the pressure considerably, he said.

At last it has been discovered—Mayor William J. Locke has a hobby, but you'll never guess. It's outboard motor boating. This was disclosed at a meeting of the newly formed Pleasant Hill Boat club of which he is a member. He related some of his boating experiences to members of the organization last night at a dinner meeting. The mayor said that once he was nearly run down by a steamer while piloting his craft at Put-in Bay

The plan of a Mansfield couple to get a divorce and let the wife's paramour pay for it had been spoiled today by the county's two judges who decided there must be something wrong with the three-way agreement. Going first to Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, the husband said he was willing to give his wife a divorce so she could marry another man who had agreed to pay the divorce costs. Turned down by Judge Huston, they went to Probate Judge C. J. Anderson who also frowned on the proposal. The couple has three small children which added complications to the case, Judge Anderson said.

The appearance here tonight and tomorrow of Cy Young, one-time great of major league baseball, Turk Reilly, Jack Hendricks and Roger Bresnahan, all of whom played in Mansfield before going up to the big time, back in the days of the O-P league, has stirred up a lot of baseball reminiscences. The old-timers will attend a Mansfield Braves pep rally at the Armory tonight and the opener with Lima at the Fairground tomorrow night. Capt. T M Bell of the police department recalled today that the late Detective Grant Alvord once sneaked a look at Young's work by standing on top of a wagon. When Young struck out a batter in a crucial situation Alvord became so excited he fell off the wagon and bit his tongue. Thereafter he was made bat boy so he could see all of the games.

HORNS STOLEN

High School Bands in Six Ohio Cities Robbed.

SANDUSKY — (AP) — Brassy thieves took a few high notes as the theft of school band instruments in northern Ohio spread to include six cities, leaving some student musicians without a horn to toot

Norwalk authorities reported three clarinets stolen. A flute was taken from a Monroeville school and a saxaphone at Vermilion, bringing the estimated loss to more than $2,000. Band instruments valued in excess of $1,000 had been stolen previously from Sandusky, Fremont and Bellevue schools.

Police at first believed only one person was responsible for the thefts, but today sought a ring suspected of learning school schedules and stealing while students are in classes.

BUSINESS MEN HIT NEW DEAL

Chamber of Commerce Told Country Still Gripped By Economic Crisis.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON— Conservative business leaders sounded a keynote for the forthcoming political campaign today as they assailed New Deal economic policies before the annual convention of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Despite reports of a promising outlook for the nation's business made to the 1,500 delegates by industry spokesmen, Chambor President W. Gibson Carey, jr., insisted the country still is in the throes of an economic crisis

Governor Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut demanded repeal of "nerve-wracking restrictions on private business" and encouragement of industrial production.

Carey, who is president of the Yale and Towne Manufacturing Co., of New York, declared that the most pressing need at present was "sound leadership in government"

"Carefully, but surely, we must reduce federal expenditures and balance our national budget, including our vast federal corporations," Carey added. "Then we must begin paying our debt.

"In due course, we should further encourage productivity and the full use of our resources by reducing taxes which are a first charge on the standard of living of every citizen because they are inevitably reflected in prices."

Governor Baldwin blamed the New Deal for continuing to give business a case of "jitters" and thereby slowing down production. He said:

"A balanced budget, economy and efficiency in government, a friendly government and cooperation with business and with industry and labor do not mean penny-squeezing, failure to provide adequate services or failing to provide generously for those in need."

ENLARGE SHELBY NYA PROJECT

SHELBY—Enlargement of the NYA program in this city to give work to 25 boys is expected to be done in the near future by NYA officials, it was learned today. The project was originally drawn up to give employment to 12 boys.

The program, sponsored by the city, employs boys of ages 18 to 25 years who are out of high school and unable to find private employment, city officials revealed.

MANSFIELD MOTOR BOAT CLUB HOLDS FIRST DINNER MEETING

Approximately 30 members of the Pleasant Hill Boat club, composed of boating enthusiasts from Mansfield and surrounding communities, staged their first dinner-meeting here last night

Organized about a month ago, the amateur yachtsmen plan to navigate the Pleasant Hill dam waters after July 1 when it will be opened to powered craft

The group was addressed by Commander Arthur D. Johnson, Cleveland, of the Vermillion Power Squadron who talked on the history of the United States Power squadron of which the Vermillion club is a branch

Commander Johnson also outlined the "rules of the road" of the sea and warned against the dangers of boating by inexperienced pilots on the Great Lakes.

"Half the time the boats of the Vermillion squadron are out on a rescue mission" he asserted, pointing out that on one occasion last summer the crews went to the help of 18 boats that had capsized.

It was pointed out by Kent Rummel, commodore of the Mansfield organization, that waters at Pleasant Hill dam were forbidden for motor boating until after July 1 and that no boating of any kind is allowed on the Charles Mill lake until after that date and then only row boats will be permitted.

Other officers of the newly formed organization are Rufus Reridon, Perrysville, first vice commodore; C G. Odell, Wooster, second vice commodore; Roy Myers secretary, and Wayne Hursh, treasurer. The club has approximately 70 members.

GIRL KIDNAPED

Pennsylvania Police Renew Search for Slayer.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(INS)—A high school girl's story of how she was kidnaped by two men from the home of her uncle, 16 miles from here, today gave renewed impetus to the search for the slayer of Rachel Taylor, Penn state college co-ed whose mutilated body was discovered near the campus a month ago.

Miss Mary Tomb, a student at Bellefonte high school, near State college, told state police engaged in the Taylor search that she escaped from two men who flung a sheet over her and dragged her into their car as she stepped onto the porch of her uncle's home at Milesburg, three miles from Bellefonte.

She eluded her captors about a mile from her home when they stopped their car, she said, and escaped to the home of Donald Newman, from where she telephoned the police.

A short time later a note was found. It read: "Kidnaped. She will return in time." It was signed "XX."

OVERTIME PAY FOR SALARIED WORKERS FIXED

Foes of Hoffman Plan Have Chance to Reconsider Tentative O. K.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Tentative acceptance of an amendment loosening maximum hours' provisions for salaried workers intensified today the house battle over revising the wage-hour law.

The proposal, by Rep Hoffman (R-Mich), was approved 74 to 38 late yesterday without concerted opposition Foes will have a chance to demand reconsideration later this week.

The amendment would remove the requirement that time-and-a-half must be paid for work in excess of 42 hours a week, but would provide that in a 26-week period the average week could not exceed that maximum unless overtime was paid.

It would apply only to persons who have worked in an office or plant for at least six months on a regular salary

The scheme would permit a man to work, for instance, 60 hours one week, 30 the second, and 25 the third, providing that at the end of 26 weeks he had not worked more than 1,092 hours

The Barden amendments, center of the house controversy, would exempt from both the wage and hour requirements a score of off-the-farm operations for processing agricultural commodities. Administration forces are fighting these proposals.

While the house was tied up in the wage-hour argument, the senate passed late yesterday an administration bill empowering the president to regulate transactions in foreign investments in this country during an emergency such as war. The house still must act.

Senator Wagner (D-NY) explained that the bill was submitted because questions had been raised about the legality of President Roosevelt's order "freezing" Danish and Norwegian credits in the United States.

Attempts by Senators Taft (R-Ohio) and Danaher (R-Conn) to limit the president's authority were defeated.

HOLDS POLE UP

Truck Serves as Prop to Lamp Post on West Third Street.

A peculiar accident on West Third street between Mulberry and Walnut, broke off a white way light pole at the base and forced a truck to serve as a prop until the Ohio Public Service company could repair the wires.

A banner advertising the Mansfield Community Fund was stretched across the street at that point, with a rope attached to the light pole. The rope became loosened, formed a loop, so that this morning when a truck passed under it, the top of the high truck caught the rope, tore the pole off at the base and shattered the light globe.

The pole fell on the truck and the truck remained stationary until electricians could repair the wire and put up a new pole today

J.A.C., GUESTS TO TOUR PLANT

150 Expected to Attend Dinner Meeting at Westinghouse.

Mansfield's Junior Association of Commerce will entertain approximately 150 members and guests at the Westinghouse plant at 6:30 p. m tonight, Robert Miller, secretary, announced today.

Following a dinner in the cafeteria, the group will be taken on a tour of inspection of the plant. The Westinghouse movie, "The Middleton Family" will be shown to the guests as a part of the program.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Excerpts From Miss Midnight's Diary.

Spring, I guess, is here. The most unexpected people went around last week carrying roller skates, the midnight flashlights caught Brenda Frazier's photogenic profile again in the rhumba palaces, Gene Krupa blossomed forth in a plaid jacket loud enough to be noticed in Hollywood, and Desi Arnaz set a record by NOT getting himself a new girl.

But it was Simone Simon who seemed actually to suffer from the unhappy fact that although spring was here, nothing was happening to the thermometers and she spent all her time dodging drafts.

Simone is as sensitive as a limpid pool to a slight breeze, whether it come straight from the mountains or by way of a night club air conditioning machine, so she is forever wrapping herself up in bits of mink and tweed and ermine, and then immediately unwrapping herself—always, it seems, either too hot or too cold.

She celebrated her 23rd birthday at the Coq Rouge Monday evening and even in the midst of festivities moved restlessly in the path of some barely discernible zephyr. She draped three different coats around her in the course of the meal.

It is a tribute to her final devotion that Simone is seen around so much in the company of her mother, for mom is young, streamlined, and beautiful and terrific competition for daughter in the head-turning sweepstakes. People are always saying:

"Look, there goes Simone Simon. Isn't her mother divine?"

There was nothing critical in the attitude of George Jean Nathan toward Julie Haydon that evening—same time, same place; nor where any breezes chilling the warm looks between Peggy Mahon and David Knott, jr., the handsome long-run society combination which has been threatening to break out in a betrothal any day.

* * *

The jungle goings-on at La Conga would have made an autograph fan very happy

Joan Crawford, who still is the No. 1 favorite of the pencil and album hounds, was there with a party of MGM officials; Franchot Tone came in with Adele Jergens (this is getting to be a very steady item), and they all bowed and said hello and danced in the same Conga line.

Eddie Cantor chaperoned Georgie Jessel and the child bride, Lois Andrew, John "Shipwreck" Kelly chaperoned Brenda Frazier, and Lyle Talbot chaperoned Ann Staunton, the blond showgirl But it was Lanny Ross who really decorated the place He was at a ringside table with five whole models (by special permission of the little woman), all gay and beautiful

They represented a committee who had adjudged him "The Most Perfect Man With Whom to Have a Date"—and what could Lanny do but prove it?

* * *

It was surprising to see Reginald Gardiner munching tete-a-tete with a male companion at the Mayon Tuesday, for Reginald is usually surrounded by glamor girls—in fact, in the pre-Markey days the movie magazine photographs usually showed him surrounded by Hedy Lamarr. Reggie was persuaded to enter the restaurant's "doodle" contest—so he carefully drew a cartoon of Hitler, carefully sketched a pistol pointed at Adolf's head, and just as painstakingly signed the drawing:

Sam Goldwyn"

At the Martinique, much later, the crowd screamed for more cyclonics from the frenetic Betty Hutton, that tiny, slim blonde who all but splinters the bandstand and annihilates the audience every time she gets up to sing a song. The customers wanted her to do "Little Miss Muffett," but this number requires a male partner, and Pancho the band leader, who stooged for Betty at the start of her engagement, reneged with a sad shake of his head

She has broken my knee and my shin," he said. "I leemp."

The snicker from the back of the room came from Keenan Wynn, Miss Hutton's patrner in "Two For the Show." He knew just what Pancho meant.

* * *

Barbara Smith, the deb, was with two lads, at the new Hurricane, and couldn't make up her mind which one she wanted to dance with, so she sat the Hawaiian waltzes out. Adele Jergens and Franchot Tone (aha, aha!) dropped in, and if they were looking for a secluded nook, they must have gnashed their teeth behind one of the native waiters—for the place was alive with Adele's pals from "DuBarry Was a Lady:" Betty Allen, Ann Graham, Virginia Cheneval and Betty Grable. Plenty of privacy, that's the feature of those Broadway tropical isles, plenty of privacy.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Billy Lee sure had a good time down in Albany, Ga.

Billy Lee went back there to see Miss Georgia Frye and Taxi Smith and Martha Inez and the elevator boy at the hotel and all the folks. Of course, sort of incidentally, Billy's trip was a business journey—personal appearance. Billy's a picture actor. Made one called "The Biscuit Eater" down in Albany, and the company set the opening there so Billy got a return trip out of it.

"It was sure fun," said Billy Lee, hero of this month's Big Comeback story. "Especially that day I was riding the ox out in the country, and I talked Miss Smith—she's Miss Rachel Smith, the Paramount school-teacher—into taking a ride on it, too. Boy, was she scared! And Taxi Smith—he's a lawyer and a great friend of mine down there since we met. . . . And Martha and Inez, they kept the candy and tobacco store at the hotel and they'd let me keep store for them sometimes. . . . And the elevator man, he let me ride it all I wanted . . . And Miss Georgia Frye—we all ate at her big house and do they have good cooking there! Oh, boy!"

* * *

Billy Lee is nine and a half years old, and about 150 percent boy. He's a stocky little fellow, with a cheery, respectful greeting for all persons in sight, most of whom he knows by name, at least around the Paramount lot, where he had worked steadily from the time he was about five. Steadily that is until a few months before they needed a youngster who could act for "The Biscuit Eater."

"The Biscuit Eater" is the story of a boy and a dog—a hunting dog who doesn't carry on the best traditions of his tribe and hence is dubbed the epithet of scorn which is the movie's title The boy of the story had to be an emotional actor

Well they picked Baby LeRoy for the role—the same Baby LeRoy who was the infant terror of the films of W. C. Fields, Maurice Chevalier, et al, in the early 1930's. After long retirement, Baby LeRoy was selected for a comeback in "The Biscuit Eater." Baby LeRoy went to Georgia and, first thing, took a cold from a water scene. The cold got worse, and a substitute was required—now, without delay.

That was where Billy Lee got the call Billy Lee, who could dance, sing, yodel, ride, beat the drums and play cute kids—mischievous mostly—had been "released" a few months before. So they called him back as the best prospect available They sent him to Georgia, and, as above reported—he had a swell time.

* * *

But he also gave an emotional performance (I base the report on a study of a few hundred preview reaction cards) which had audiences cheering and Paramount, surprised but happy, talking of bigger and better things

"I just did what the director said to do" Master Lee will dismiss that feat of acting "Of course when the dog was dying, it was so real I guess I forgot it was for a picture and well, you know how it is"

INFANT BURIED

Burial services were held this morning at the Mohican Church of the Brethren cemetery for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Weidenhamer, 250 Helen avenue, who died shortly after birth Monday afternoon at Mansfield General hospital.

CHAPTER XXX

It had come. Just the moment she had been expecting, and dreading. Yet, dreading. Elaine suddenly became aware of this as he took her hand tenderly in his. She had been dreading this moment because she was not ready for it. She had to get things straight in her mind; she had to have time to think carefully before she could answer him. Marriage to a man you loved was a serious step; marriage to a man you only liked . . ."

She made an effort to withdraw her hand but he clung to it. "You shouldn't say such things," she told him softly, looking him straight in the eyes.

He sighed and his bronzed face grew troubled. "Yes, I know. You haven't had time enough to get over Eric. Elaine, I wouldn't have said that, only — well, I haven't much time either. I'm leaving for China in two weeks."

"China?" Elaine was round-eyed with surprise. His disclosure made her forget momentarily her feeling of embarrassment. "But Melvyn, when did you decide that? Why haven't you told me sooner?"

"You weren't in the mood," he told her shortly. "I was offered a position as surgeon in a hospital in Shanghai last week. Naturally, I accepted it. It's the chance I've always hoped I would get. There's need for good surgeons over there, Elaine, and I'll really be of some value to the hospital and to the people. The main reason I became a surgeon is that I wanted to be of service to people."

"But—but the war," Elaine said, her concern for him driving all other thoughts from her mind. She gripped his hand tightly. "Melvyn, you may be killed. From what I've read in the papers the Japanese bombers don't even spare hospitals. You mustn't go, Melvyn. Why, you would be in danger every minute."

Her concern brought the fires to his eyes. "Do you really like me as much as all that, Elaine? Would it make any difference to you if I were killed?"

She nodded her head emphatically. "But of course I would mind," she exclaimed, hurt by his question. "You should know that, Melvyn."

* * *

Her mild reproof brought the color to his cheeks. "Of course I know that, Elaine. And I know, too, that I will be in danger over there. But I'm going. It may be silly, or crazy, or anything else you want ot call it, but I have an idea that I will find myself over there. And what if I am killed? Death in the service of humanity is infinitely more noble and dignified than death beneath the wheels of an automobile."

Elaine nodded her head and remained silent, realizing the futility of further argument. Melvyn knew what he was doing; he was prepared to accept all the risks, even death. She glanced at him, a strange fire burning in her eyes. Somehow she had the feeling that she was seeing the real Melvyn for the first time—a Melvyn who was very much of a man!

"Death in the service of humanity!" What noble sentiment lay beneath the surface of those words! Somehow, the manner in which he had enunciated them had inspired her, had seemed to lift her bodily from the seat of the car and return her again a new woman.

Thrilled to the core of her being, Elaine pressed his hand close. "A minute ago, Melvyn, I told you that you should not have said you loved me. Perhaps you shouldn't—I really don't know—but regardless of that, I'm glad you did. And I'm proud that a man like you does love me, Melvyn. Proud—and humbly grateful."

"You sound like the silly heroine of some book," he remarked with an impudent grin. "And I resent being placed on a pedestal to be honored and revered by all. I'm not a superhuman being. I'm only a man who, frankly, is very much afraid and who is quite amazed that he had the courage to accept the position. But you know, Elaine, I wouldn't feel a bit afraid if you were my wife!"

"Are you asking me to be your wife, Melvyn?" Elaine said, although she very well knew that he had been delaying his proposal until she recovered from the shock of Eric's deserting her. "Are you asking me to marry you and go to China with you?"

His voice came deep from his throat, husky with emotion. "Yes, Elaine, I am. Oh, I know I haven't the right to ask you to go over to that hellhole with me. Most people would condemn me for even thinking of asking you. But, strangely, I think it would do you good. You've led such a cloistered life and, frankly, it hasn't helped you. You must go where people really live, Elaine, where all life is a grim struggle for survival. That's what you need, Elaine, and what better place could you go to find that than to a land rent by war and suffering beneath hardships and atrocities which seem fantastic to you today."

Elaine had caught some of the fervor of his softly spoken words and she strove desperately to retain her sense of balance. Put that way, marriage to Melvyn sounded noble and fine—but—would he still ask her to marry him if he knew she didn't love him?

"Perhaps you are right, Melvyn," she said calmly, eying him frankly. "But I don't love you. Would you want me that way?"

His answer came promptly and certain. "Of course. I think that some day you will love me, Elaine. Some day you will forget Eric. I'm willing to gamble on that. Elaine, will you marry me?"

"Think, Melvyn," she warned anxiously. "Knowing I don't love you, knowing I haven't a penny to my name, knowing I haven't even training for a job, knowing I can bring nothing into your life, would you still want me?"

"You'd be bringing yourself into my life, Elaine. You would be the most precious part of it."

She heaved a troubled sigh. Now, even more than before, she could not run the risk of hurting him. A man who was prepared to give his life to the service of humanity was entitled to everything he wanted. And he wanted her. Eric didn't. Melvyn would be happy with her, unhappy without her, and even if she didn't love him she knew she would make him a good wife.

She seemed to see Eric's face floating in the air before her as she made her decision. Trembling, she passed a hand across her eyes. She must forget Eric. He was gone from her life now. Today, tomorrow, forever!

"Very well, Melvyn. I'll—marry—you."

There was no kiss. No whispered exchange of sweet nothings into each other's ears. Melvyn, seeming to sense that for the moment she wanted to be alone with her thoughts, simply smiled when he heard her softly spoken consent and started the car. A gay laugh broke from his lips as they sped down the road. "Boy," he exclaimed, "Jane will be surprised to hear about this!"

His remark was a great understatement. Jane was not merely surprised, she was frankly incredulous.

"You're lying, Melvyn," she told him with sisterly candor when he told her the news.

* * *

Betty, who had been sitting on the couch gossiping with Jane when they arrived, was not so surprised, however. She marched across the room and looked intently at Elaine's face. She scowled and tapped the toe of her shoe restlessly upon the floor and sighed.

"Nope, he isn't lying, Jane. Elaine and Mel are going to be married."

With a whoop of sheer joy, Jane rushed across the room and flung her arms around Elaine's neck. Her eyes were wide and laughing.

"My sister-in-law. Oh, Elaine, we'll have to make it a double wedding. Oh—how swell!"

"It will be swell," Elaine lied, forcing a smile to her lips. "I'm—I'm the happiest girl in the world."

Only Betty knew that she was lying. And for once in her life Betty decided to remain silent. She congratulated Melvyn, planted an inaccurate kiss on Elaine's lips, and then marched out of the house and down the street to a telegraph office.

* * *

It was time some one did something about all this. Elaine had been a fool and Eric had been an even bigger one. They didn't deserve her help, but after all, she was Elaine's friend. Her telegram was brief and to the point. It was addressed to Eric Reardon, Lynville, California. It read:

YOU ARE A DOPE SO IS ELAINE STOP SHE IS MARRYING SOMEONE ELSE UNLESS . . . Betty Gordon.

Health Diet for Lilacs.

While lilacs are not fussy shrubs, they will grow and bloom better if planted in a fairly rich soil where they will get lots of sunlight. It is best not to let them bloom during the first season after transplanting. Pinching off the flower buds permits the plant's energy to be used entirely in making new root growth.

Once lilacs have become established a health diet will keep the bushes in a thriving condition and produce large, full spikes of bloom. The health diet for lilacs consists of sequence feedings of lime, bone meal and potash, as indicated in the Garden-Graph. In early spring, before growth starts, give lilacs a "powdering" of lime. Later, as the buds show evidence of growth, give the bushes a feeding of bone meal. In the fall a sprinkling of potash around the shrubs will prove beneficial.

THEATERS

"Follies" and Film.

Calvert's "Egyptian Follies" will appear at the Madison theater Wednesday and Thursday for a stage presentation. Many varied acts will be presented. "French Without Tears," starring Ellen Drew and Ray Milland, is the screen feature. The show enjoyed a long and successful run on Broadway and then was translated to the screen. Briefly, the story tells how a lovely girl comes to visit her brother at a French school and causes a riot among the young men who are studying the Gallic tongue.

* * *

Authentic Background.

The director of "Rebecca" was a guest of Miss Daphne du Maurier; the author, when in England, and she personally took him through an old estate which served as the pattern for her physical description of Manderley. This picture is showing at the Ohio theater through Thursday. Manderley is the castle of the de Winters, the leading characters in the story, played by Joan Fontaine and Laurence Olivier.

* * *

Fame and Love.

Leslie Howard, Ingrid Bergman and Edna Best are the starring trio in the romantic drama "Intermezzo, a Love Story," which is showing at the Majestic theater. It is a drama about a great violinist who in remembering his youth and the happy days when he was first married, believes he has fallen in love again with a younger and more beautiful woman. "Bachelor Mother" with Ginger Rogers and David Niven in the cast is the second feature, which is full of laughs and tears.

Ann Sothern Returns.

Miss Sothern who is always a favorite returns to the local screen in "Joe and Ethel Turp Calls on the President." Co-starring with her is William Gargan. Joe and Ethel are the famous Damon Runyon's characters and may be seen at the Ritz theater Wednesday and Thursday. The second feature is "Smashing the Money Ring" with Ronald Regan, Margot Stevenson and Eddie Foy, jr., in the cast. This continues the adventures of that intrepid United States government operative "Brass" Bancroft, played by Reagan.

* * *

Comedy and Horror.

A number of tuneful melodies make their screen debut in "Village Barn Dance" which is showing at the Park theater. This is a comedy drama for which a blue ribbon cast of radio and screen personalities have been assembled. Bela Lugosi plays the "Human Monster," based on "Dark Eyes of London" by Edgar Wallace. Greta Gynt plays the feminine role in this horror mystery.

Take Club Title

Lumbermens Keglers Are Awarded Trophy at Annual Dinner.

LUMBERMENS Insurance keglers own the championship of the Club handicap bowling league.

The Insurancemen were awarded the trophy at the annual banquet staged at the American Legion last night. Some 100 bowlers attended the affair.

Chalking up 63 victories against 36 losses, the Lumbermens team topped the runner-up Tracy and Avery club by nine games. The new championship team is composed of Richard Olin, Dick Nichols, Dwight Smith, Gene Bailey, Donald Frampton and Danner Dalton, captain.

* * *

While the Liederkranz team finished in eighth place, it ran off with practically all the team honors except the title. In single games the club was tops with a 1050 and the three-game series took first place honors with a 3074.

* * *

Henry Michaels walked off with the single game individual honors with a 191.53 average, while Clarence "Sonny" Meder finished second with a 190.26 mark. Bill Donnellan was first in high individual singles games with a 279 and Jim Orr was second with a 266. Michaels was high for a three-game series by virtue of a 695 total.

Pete Linster was elected president for the 1940-41 season. Other officials for the new year are George Garrison, vice president, and Harold Miller, secretary and treasurer. It marks the third straight year Miller has held those positions.

Joey Maxin to Fight Zacharias In One of Top Bouts at Armory

By CHARLES MARTIN

A YOUNGSTER who has won every important amateur boxing championship in the United States since the first of the year has been secured to meet Jake Zacharias, Mansfield middleweight, in one of the feature five-round matches on the Friendly House fight card Thursday, May 16, at the Armory.

* * * * *

The lad is Joey Maxin of Cleveland and he puts a brilliant record on the block when he climbs through the ropes to face the Mansfielder in the semi-final setto.

* * * * *

Maxin, considered by many Cleveland fight experts as the best amateur in the Lake City, earlier this year won four successive tournament championships.

His greatest triumph was winning the National A. A. U. crown at Boston. Other titles were collected in the Cleveland Golden Gloves classic, the Chicago Tournament of Champions, and the New York Golden Gloves meet.

Incidentally, in Zacharias he faces a dangerous threat. Zacharias lost a close decision to Maxin in an opening round bout at Cleveland and will be out to even the score.

Maxin's best offensive weapon against Zacharias was a lightning left jab, but the Mansfielder believes he can halt the Cleveland boy. The battle is one of three five-rounders on the attractive card.

In the main event, Beauford Glover, Mansfield lightweight who was a teammate of Maxin's at Boston, tackles Frank Franklin of Columbus. The Capital City lad gave Ray Howman a thorough beating in Battery D's "Battle of Champions" show recently, and matchmakers believe he can make it interesting for Glover.

Paul Carbetta, crack Mansfield bantamweight, meets Ernie Mossman, another Clevelander, in the third five-round tussle. Mossman, who was also a member of the Cleveland championship team at Boston, was a finalist in the Cleveland tourney. He lost to Buddy Smallwood of Akron, and Smallwood was the lad who eliminated Carbetta in a semi-final bout.

* * * * *

While these bouts stack up as the best placed on a card here in several years, five three-round heats will complete the show which is being staged by the settlement to raise funds for a boxers' medical fund.

* * * * *

Part of the proceeds will be used to help defray expenses of Al Sauer's doctor bill. Sauer broke the thumb on his left hand in the "Battle of Champions" show. He will not participate in a fight until mid-summer.

Extend Deadline For Entries

THE final deadline for eligibility blanks in the YMCA softball leagues has been extended a week, Don Cram, secretary of the YMCA softball commission said today. Due to inclement weather the past few weeks, teams were given the extension of time so as to sign their respective players. All lists for the leagues are to be in by Wednesday night with the final eligibility blanks to be handed in next Wednesday night.

There is still room in the club league for any organization loop. The softball commission wishing to place a team in the are attempting to keep the Club circuit intact. However, two or three more teams are needed to complete the league. Club teams of the past few years are asked to consider the requests of the commission so as to keep it alive.

* * *

There will still be a possibility of a four league set-up with the interest as strong as it is this year, or a the season with at least six. The Independent league which will be the top league will open the season with a least six teams. The Church league still needs two teams to complete the roster.

* * *

Entry blanks may be secured at the YMCA offices for all of the leagues. Teams are requested to get their fees in as quickly as possible as the leagues will be limited to eight teams with the early entries receiving the preference.

There will be no meeting of the softball league team managers Wednesday night.

Electric Doubles Team Takes Second

A Mansfield Westinghouse Electric doubles bowling team of Grable and Fensch, tied for second place in the Kentucky Derby Bowling tournament held in Louisville, Ky., Saturday and Sunday.

Grable rolled a 633 and Fensch a 555, to total a 1188 score.

Grable Humphrey Hosey, Perrine and Fensch who composed another Mansfield team totaled 2,515 to capture seventh place at the tournament. They still hold this position on the score board.

SOFTBALL TEAMS CLASH

Mansfield Wreckers softball team will clash with the Kobacker store outfit at Armory field at 6 p. m. Wednesday. All players are requested to be in uniform and on the diamond at 5:45 p. m.

YOST ENTERS LAST YEAR AT MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY

ANN ARBOR, (AP)—Fielding H. Yost, entering his last year as director of athletics at the University of Michigan, marked his 69th birthday today and observed that "people think and worry too much about things that never happen."

Yost, Michigan's athletic director since 1921, will retire in June 1941, since university regulations call for compulsory retirement at the age of 70.

CHICAGO SCHLITZ QUINT MAKES BID FOR MONEY

DETROIT —(U.P.)— The Chicago Schlitz quintet made a strong bid to place in the money in the American Bowling Congress last night but fell short because of untimely splits. Their final total was 2,881, on games of 909-969-1003.

Leaders in the current classic remained unchanged last night. Will Spinelle and Anthony Ardillo, Rochester, N. Y., rolled 1277 to lead the doubles competition, and George Watts of Newark was highest in singles with 677.

PAM— "Serious Business!" By A. W. Brewerton

I'M GOING TO SEE MY FRIEND, POLICE INSPECTOR KING! IF THIS MYSTERIOUS WOMAN IS ON THE LEVEL, WE MAY NEED LOTS OF HELP —IN A HURRY!
4-30
AND SHE WAS EMPHATIC ABOUT PAMELA'S BEING SAFE AND WELL!
I'M GLAD, GORDON IS HERE! HE THINKS THAT WOMAN REALLY MAY BE WHAT SHE CLAIMS
BUT WHY DON'T WE HEAR FROM HER AGAIN?
I'VE PROMISED THAT BUNCH TO DELIVER THE SIGNED LEASE — AND I HAVEN'T EVEN CALLED THE WIDOW, YET— — IF THIS WOMAN IS A FAKE — AND THE GANG GET WISE TO MY BLUFFING — WHAT MAY HAPPEN TO PAM?
HELLO, GORDON! DIDN'T KNOW YOU WERE IN TOWN! —BUSINESS?
YES, INSPECTOR —VERY SERIOUS BUSINESS!

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE— We, the People. By Harold Gray

SABOTAGE! BAH! HOW CAN ANYBODY WRECK A COUNTRY THIS BIG? SPOOK-HUNTING! THAT'S WHAT IT IS— FEW FANATICS LOOSE, MAYBE—
SURE— WHY WHO'D WANT TO RUIN THIS COUNTRY?
4-30-40
EXACTLY! ALL NONSENSE—AND WHO COULD IF THEY WANTED TO? WHY BOTHER TO INVESTIGATE THEM? THIS IS A FREE COUNTRY!
YOU SAID IT— ALWAYS HAVE BEEN A FEW SCREW-BALLS HATCHING PLOTS— WHAT HARM CAN THEY DO?
SURE— FEW SORE-HEADS WHO'D RATHER TALK THAN WORK— JUST A HANDFUL OF CRACK POTS—
AND THIS TALK OF OUTSIDERS COMING IN— NONSENSE! IMPOSSIBLE!
YEAH! FEW LOUD-MOUTHED BIRDS ON SOAP BOXES— WHO LISTENS TO 'EM? LIKE TO SEE ANY OF 'EM TRY TO TELL ME—
SO, IT CAN HAPPEN HERE? HAW! HAW! HAW! THAT'S A GOOD ONE! WHAT'D WE BE DOIN' IN THE MEANTIME, EH?

THE NEBBS— The Schemers. By Sol Hess

THEATRE PARTIES — FLOWERS AND DINNERS AND MORE FLOWERS — THE NEBBS ARE BEING DELUGED WITH BRAINLY'S MANY KINDNESSES
4-30
I WAS MUCH INTERESTED IN FOLLOWING YOUR FLIGHT IN THE NEWSPAPERS BUT NOW, OFF THE RECORD, NEBB, IS THERE ANYTHING PHONY ABOUT THESE PILLS? THEY CAN'T DO EVERYTHING YOU CLAIM FOR THEM
EVERYTHING AND MORE, MR. LOBER. I WILL BE HAPPY TO DEMONSTRATE THEIR POWER
THERE'S AN IDEA, MR. LOBER! — WHY DON'T YOU AND NEBB HOOK UP IN THIS PROPOSITION? HE'S GOT THE PRODUCT — YOU GOT THE MONEY AND ORGANIZATION — A PERFECT COMBINATION
YOU KNOW, BRAINLY, THAT ATLAS PROPOSITION I JUST TOOK OVER AND THERE'S A BIG REORGANIZATION THEY WANT US TO HANDLE — BUT I'LL BE GLAD TO TALK THIS OVER WITH MR. NEBB — IF IT'S ALL HE CLAIMS IT IS WE MIGHT GO PLACES
THERE ARE ONLY TWO THINGS THE MATTER WITH THE PILL PROPOSITION — IT WILL MAKE ME TOO RICH AND WORK TOO HARD AND I NEVER HAD MUCH DESIRE FOR EITHER

BRICK BRADFORD— Seeks the Diamond Doll. By William Ritt and Clarence Gray

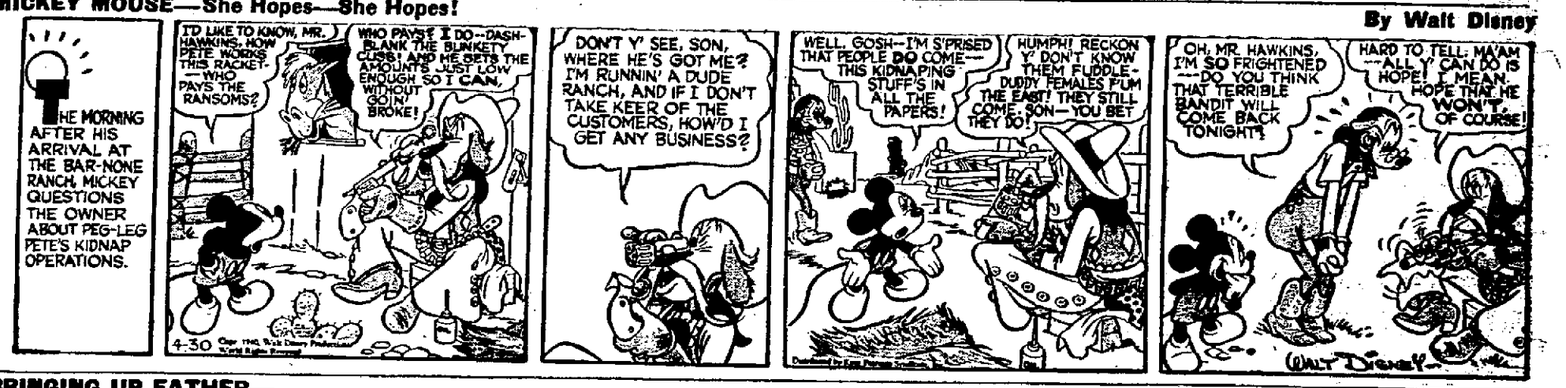
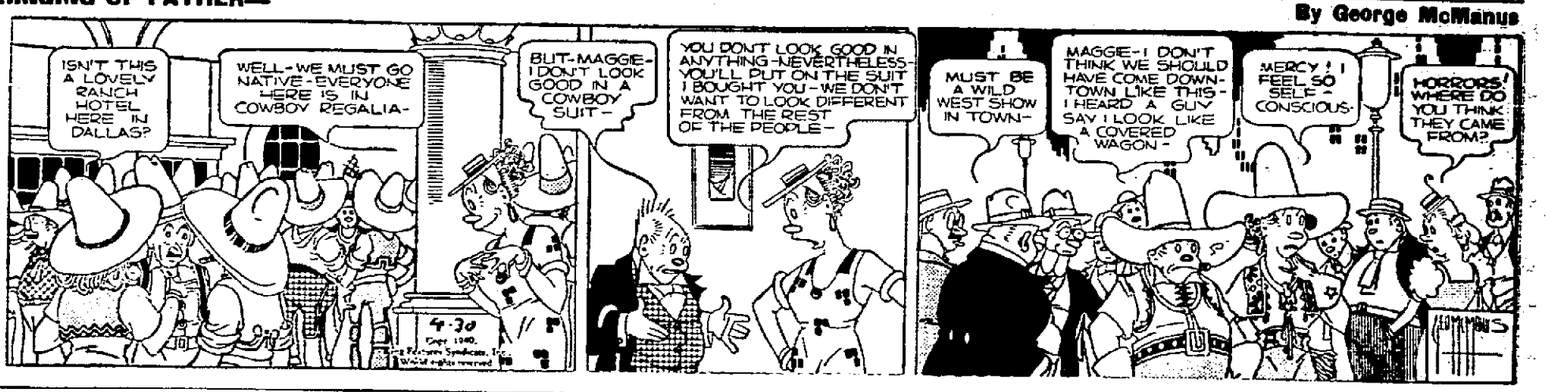
MICKEY MOUSE— She Hopes—She Hopes! By Walt Disney



THE MORNING AFTER HIS ARRIVAL AT THE BAR-NONE RANCH, MICKEY QUESTIONS THE OWNER ABOUT PEG-LEG PETE'S KIDNAP OPERATIONS.
I'D LIKE TO KNOW, MR. HAWKINS, HOW PETE WORKS THIS RACKET— WHO PAYS THE RANSOMS?
WHO PAYS? I DO—DASH-BLANK THE BLINKETY CUSS! AND HE BETS THE AMOUNT'S JUST LOW ENOUGH SO I CAN, WITHOUT GOIN' BROKE!
DON'T Y' SEE, SON, WHERE HE'S GOT ME? I'M RUNNIN' A DUDE RANCH, AND IF I DON'T TAKE KEER OF THE CUSTOMERS, HOW'D I GET ANY BUSINESS?
WELL, GOSH— I'M S'PRISED THAT PEOPLE DO COME— THIS KIDNAPING STUFF'S IN ALL THE PAPERS!
HUMPH! RECKON Y' DON'T KNOW THEM FUDDLE-DUDDY FEMALES FUM THE EAST! THEY STILL COME, SON— YOU BET THEY DO!
OH, MR. HAWKINS, I'M SO FRIGHTENED — DO YOU THINK THAT TERRIBLE BANDIT WILL COME BACK TONIGHT?
HARD TO TELL, MA'AM — ALL Y' CAN DO IS HOPE! I MEAN HOPE THAT HE WON'T, OF COURSE!
WALT DISNEY

BRINGING UP FATHER— By George McManus



ISN'T THIS A LOVELY RANCH HOTEL HERE IN DALLAS?
WELL— WE MUST GO NATIVE— EVERYONE HERE IS IN COWBOY REGALIA—
BUT— MAGGIE— I DON'T LOOK GOOD IN A COWBOY SUIT—
YOU DON'T LOOK GOOD IN ANYTHING— NEVERTHELESS— YOU'LL PUT ON THE SUIT I BOUGHT YOU— WE DON'T WANT TO LOOK DIFFERENT FROM THE REST OF THE PEOPLE—
4-30
MUST BE A WILD WEST SHOW IN TOWN—
MAGGIE— I DON'T THINK WE SHOULD HAVE COME DOWN-TOWN LIKE THIS— I HEARD A GUY SAY I LOOK LIKE A COVERED WAGON—
MERCY! I FEEL SO SELF-CONSCIOUS—
HORRORS! WHERE DO YOU THINK THEY CAME FROM?
GEO. McMANUS

THE GUMPS— The Great Lover. By Gus Edson

I'M GETTING A BIT ANNOYED AT BABY— NOT THAT I DON'T SYMPATHIZE, BUT— EVER SINCE SHE RECEIVED THAT UNSIGNED POEM, SHE'S BEEN MOONING AROUND THE HOUSE LIKE A LOVE-SICK CALF—
WHY, MIM— HOW CAN YOU BEGRUDGE THE POOR HUNGRY GIRL A CRUMB FROM CUPID'S FESTIVE BOARD?
4-30
I UNDERSTAND, BECAUSE I'VE PARTAKEN OF HIS CHOICEST VIANDS— WHEN I WAS A YOUNG FELLOW, I HAD TO BRUSH LOVE-SICK GIRLS FROM MY PATH LIKE LEAVES—
HA-HA! DON'T MAKE ME LAUGH, MISTER ROMEO GUMP!
—YOU HUNG AROUND MY FRONT DOOR SO LONG, PEOPLE BEGAN TO THINK YOU WERE A COMPANION PIECE TO THE IRON DOG ON THE LAWN!
OH, THERE YOU ARE, COUSEEN MIN— AND YOU ARE NOT YET READY? WE ARE TO GO TO BUY SHOES AT THE WONDERFUL SALE DOWNTOWN BEFORE NOON!
THEY GO WILD, SIMPLY WILD OVER ME-E-E-!

DICK TRACY— Hand Work. —By CHESTER GOULD

WELL, IT LOOKS TO ME LIKE THE JOB WON'T BE SO TOUGH, TRACY.
YOU MEAN JUST LOCATING A MIDGET THAT OWNS A SAINT BERNARD DOG?
WHY, CERTAINLY! A DOG THAT BIG IS HARD TO HIDE. HE'S BOUND TO BE SPOTTED BY SOMEONE.
BUT WHY DOES JEROME WANT US TO BRING TRACY TO HIM? DOES HE WANT TO TELL THE FLATFOOT OFF?
I DON'T THINK SO.
HE WANTS TO CHANGE HIS ARCHITECTURE A LITTLE BIT... ER... PARTICULARLY THE RIGHT HAND.
WHAT?

GOOD AFTERNOON, MADAM!.... I AM PRESIDENT OF THE PUFFLE BAKERY, AND I AM TAKING ORDERS FOR MY SENSATIONAL NEW TYPE OF DOUGHNUT FOR DUNKING!....OBSERVE ITS MODERN STREAMLINE DESIGN FOR DAINTY DIPPING! ....NO DANGER OF IT FALLING APART, LIKE THE OLD ROUND DOUGHNUT, AND SPLOTCHING YOUR TABLE LINEN WITH COFFEE STAINS!
I'LL TAKE THREE FRESH EVERY MORNING FOR MY HUSBAND'S LUNCH-BOX, BUT YOU'LL HAVE TO DELIVER THEM HERE BEFORE SEVEN!
CAN I HAVE ANOTHER, MISTER?
NO SALE, MADAM, ON THAT 7 A.M. DELIVERY!

PRICE CHANGES LEAVE STOCKS DOUBTFUL TODAY

Market Students Find Little Cheer in Statement of Loans Dropping $11,000,000.

NEW YORK — Slightly mixed price changes today left stock market trends in doubt.

Among resistant issues were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Briggs Mfg., Douglas Aircraft, Standard Oil of N. J., Anaconda, Consolidated Edison and American Telephone.

Bonds, commodities and foreign securities markets were uneven.

Conflicting war shifts in Norway continued to act as a speculative restraint, brokers said.

Market students found little to cheer about in the statement of reporting Federal Reserve member banks in 101 cities disclosing that, in the week ended April 24, commercial, agricultural and industrial loans dropped $11,000,000.

Heavy purchases in this country of iron and steel scrap by the British received the attention of observers in the metal field.

Governor Bricker Denies Ohio Cities Face Relief Crises

AUDITOR SAYS 50 AREAS IN STATE BROKE

Governor Agrees Some Cities Must Pass Levies to Continue Aid.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Governor Bricker reiterated today that Ohio's metropolitan and rural areas are not facing relief crises in the near future, despite assertions to the contrary by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

Ferguson averred that 80 per cent of the state's subdivisions face a breakdown in relief before August because they were piling up deficits without knowing where they would obtain funds to meet obligations for care of needy.

"There is no change in the relief situation throughout the state," Bricker said when informed of Ferguson's allegations. "There is no danger of an immediate crisis anywhere."

He added, however, that some cities might be thrown into a critical state if pending levies for relief failed to pass.

Ferguson also contended that the state had no authority to allocate funds to cities which failed to appropriate similar amounts for relief.

Bricker replied that state funds went to cities that certified how much they had spent for relief, whether the bills were paid or not. He added that certifications were based either on resources of the various communities or available resources.

The auditor's office stated that at least 50 relief areas in the state, out of a total of 146, now were "in the red" as a result of caring for the needy during the past few months.

O. P. Van Schoick, chief examiner for Ferguson, said Cleveland's unpaid relief bills totaled $3,381,098, whereas the city's bank balance for that purpose showed only $768,978 as of March 1.

Other areas facing crises, he said, included:

Athens county; relief fund overdrawn $7,180 as of April 1; total deficit $64,373.

Belmont county; has relief balance of $17,192, as of April 1, but unpaid bills total $61,922.

City of Toledo; $120,688 in fund as of April 1; unpaid bills total $1,074,041.

Columbus; fund overdrawn $198,615 as of April 1; total deficit $489,470.

Ferguson contended that under such conditions the grocers, small merchants and physicians in the various communities "are financing the relief programs" by waiting for their money.

"And I don't see where the cities are going to get the money to pay these bills," Ferguson concluded.

250 Present at Party for School Faculty, Officials

About 250 teachers in Mansfield public schools, members of the board of education and their wives, were guests of the faculty at Johnny Appleseed junior high school at a party last night.

A musical program of school talent was staged in the auditorium, followed by dancing and games in the gymnasium and refreshments in the cafeteria.

Featured on the program were Mary Norton, Katherine Schaller, Burton Lawrence, Marianne Swinehart, Jack Spicer, George Knackstedt, William Nixon and Jane Gibbs, John Berger, Janet and Joan Banks and Helen Pecht, and a play "A Major Operation" by a school dramatic group.

Eddie Fisher acted as master of ceremonies. Music for dancing was furnished by Gene Rapp and his six-piece orchestra.

Arrangements were in charge of Glenn Bolender, general chairman, Miss Virginia Palmer, John Cox, Miss Wilma Snyder, Miss Jane Seybold, Paul Cameron and [illegible] Wilkes.

OHIOANS PLEAD FOR SANDSTONE

Buckeye Building Material Boosted by McGregor In Congress.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Boosters of Ohio sandstone joined today in opposition to the Hobbs bill to require the use of marble facing on all new government buildings in the northwest triangle here.

Concluding its public hearings on the bill, by Representative Hobbs (D., Ala.), the house public buildings and grounds committee heard the praises of sandstone, limestone and marble sung by Representative McGregor (R., Ohio).

Boosting Ohio standstone, McGregor complained Ohio's leading building material had not been used in any government building here although its qualities and endurance were recognized by the building industry elsewhere.

McGregor submitted a statement signed by himself and nine other Ohio representatives opposing the bill and requesting that all building materials be considered in government construction work here.

The committee will begin consideration of the bill in executive session tomorrow.

WEATHER OR NO

Building Permits Issued Show April Boom Despite Cold.

The vagaries of the weather had little effect on the April building boom this year, according to figures made public today at the City building.

The number of residence permits applied for was only one below the total for the three preceding months and was considerably higher in dollar valuations.

There were 34 permits issued for residences in April at a total valuation of $169,050, as compared with 35 permits issued for the first three months of the year at a total value of $142,700.

Building permits, both residential and other, for April amounted to $196,995. The figure for last April was considerably higher since the permit for John Simpson junior high school was included.

Communist Manifesto Backs Nazi Right to Fight.

LONDON—(INS)—Nazi Germany entered Norway "in reply to Allied violation of her neutrality" and Italy now is preparing to join the war, the Communist International declared in a proclamation tonight, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Moscow.

Italy has strengthened her position in the Balkans and Spain, the manifesto asserted and now is ready for hostilities.

Bourgeoisie of the United States, the International declared, "are attempting to seize Greenland, Finland and British and French possessions in the Caribbean."

News In Crawford County Courts

BUCYRUS Probate court: A marriage license has been issued to Willis F. Emmer, 25, Crestline, clerk, son of Dewalt and Grace Emmer, and Dorothy Snyder, 21, Galion clerk, daughter of Fred and Ethel Snyder.

The will of Louis Hocker has been filed in probate court. The will names four sons, August, Fred, Edward and Walter, each of whom is to receive a one-fifth interest in the estate and the remaining fifth to be divided between three grandchildren, Viola, Carl and Lawrence Shumaker. August and Fred Hocker are named executors.

HUSTON FREES ASHLAND YOUTH

Places Raymond Jacobs Under Probation for Three Years For Automobile Theft.

young Jacobs took a car owned by Ray E. Gale of Mansfield, drove it to Ashland where he was involved in a collision with another car, and then fled to Cleveland. He returned a few hours later and gave himself up to authorities. The youth was pinned in the wreckage of the car, but escaped injury.

Ashland police said he deliberately threw a lighted cigaret into a pool of gasoline under the car, setting it on fire. City firemen extinguished the blaze.

Prosecutor Marriott said J. W. McGugin, Monroe township, who was indicted for arson last week, will be arraigned Saturday morning before Judge Huston. He is free under $2,500 bond. McGugin is accused of setting fire to his barn to collect insurance.

Winning posters are being sent to Atlantic City for entrance in the national poster contest. Other entries will be displayed in downtown store windows throughout fire prevention and clean-up week, May 5-12.

WORK STOPPED

Labor Trouble Halts Super Highway Construction.

AKRON—(AP)—Construction of the new route 18 super-highway for a six-and-one-half-mile stretch west of Montrose, between Akron and Medina, remained at a standstill today.

Work was stopped yesterday when 100 representatives of the operating engineers union, an AFL affiliate, converged on the project.

No attempt was being made today to work, Contractor A. J. Baltes of Norwalk said. He indicated that operations would be resumed as soon as he could obtain police protection.

Baltes declared that he was observing all federal and state regulations as to wages and hours and other conditions of employment and claimed that the union "simply wants everybody to join."

HARMONY MOVE SEEN AS HINT OF FDR PLANS

Signs Indicate President Has Decided Against Third Term Candidacy.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—There was increasing evidence today that President Roosevelt ultimately will declare himself out of the 1940 race.

The signs were seen as a White House-approved move was made to restore harmony in Texas between third term advocates and the forces of Vice President Jack Garner.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement of position one way or the other is not expected until after the Republicans have nominated their candidates at Philadelphia in late June, but when it does come his lieutenants believe it will be couched in such positive terms that there will be no question as to the meaning.

Intimated of the president are convinced Mr. Roosevelt wants to quit at the end of his second term. They believe that after eight grueling years in the White House he wants to get out and loaf a bit and enjoy himself.

Those who observe his daily activities at the White House and accompany him to Hyde Park and Warm Springs have noticed that in recent months he has been arranging and cataloguing his books, papers, etc., in a fashion that would indicate he was preparing to leave public life.

One member of the White House inner circle made only one qualification in following this line of reasoning—"that events in Europe might be piling up so fast as to make him do something he doesn't want to do."

Meanwhile, for the obvious purpose of dominating the Democratic convention in Chicago next July, whether a candidate or not, President Roosevelt is letting the third termers roll up an imposing array of delegates for him. He is insistent that his party nominate "a liberal pair of candidates on a liberal, forward-looking platform."

Nazis Take Dombaas, And Link Two Armies

Germans Claim Smashing Victory Over Allies in Central Norway; London Admits Troops Have Retreated.

held by the British. (In London, a spokesman said the Germans had occupied Stoeren.)

The official news agency said that German troops advancing up the Gudbrands valley from Otta—where they had defeated the British—captured Dombaas.

(In London, a war communique said that on Sunday night the British had retired to positions before Dombaas and there was much speculation in military quarters there as to whether the Allied forces would be able to remain in that part of Norway south of Trondheim.)

The German newspapers hailed developments on the central Norwegian front as a tremendous German victory.

The high command, reporting operations along the railroad from Dombaas to Stoeren, said:

"Severely pressing the retreating enemy, the German troops advancing in the Gudbrandsal at noon today reached the important railroad junction of Dombaas.

"Advancing from the north toward the south along the railroad from Trondheim to Dombaas, our troops occupied Opdal. Thereby the main railroad connection from Oslo to Trondheim is in German hands."

London Admits Allied Retreat

(By United Press)

LONDON—A war office communique today said that Allied forces in Norway's Gudbrands valley again had retreated to positions defending the vital railroad junction of Dombaas.

German troops suffered heavy casualties in the fighting, the communique said.

The communique was issued after a military spokesman had said that the Germans had taken the town of Stoeren south of Trondheim. The Allied troops are fighting to defend the important railroad from Dombaas to Stoeren.

Previously, a spokesman had described the Allied position along the Dombaas-Stoeren railroad as "difficult" after the reported fall of Stoeren.

Confirmation of the report would mean that the Germans, driving up the two main valleys from southern Norway, were within 25 miles of their goal—a juncture of forces with the Germans holding Trondheim.

However, an hour after the military spokesman had reported the German occupation of Stoeren, the ministry of information in a special bulletin said:

The report that Stoeren is in German hands is a rumor emanating from Swedish sources which is not confirmed."

It was indicated that German motorized forces were driving strongly up the Gudbrands valley, that they had taken the town of Otta where the Allies had made a stand and that they were probably within five or six miles of Dombaas the railroad junction and Allied field base south of Stoeren.

"Some" Allied troops were still at Dombaas, the military informant said, but it was believed that the main Allied position was now in the neighborhood of Hierkinn, about 20 miles north of Dombaas.

The Allies had beaten off a strong German attack southeast of Dombaas, on the road to Otta, Sunday and yesterday, it was asserted, and had destroyed some German tanks of medium size.

In the Bergen area German troops advancing against the Norwegians were reported to have reached the town of Godvalen, on an arm of the Sognefjord.

In the Namsos area, north of Trondheim, Allied troops were reported to be holding their positions as of yesterday, north of Steinkjer

Allied troops at Narvik, in the far north have been reinforced and are closing in on the German-held town it was said

Both Sides Rush Reinforcements

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM—Allied and German reinforcements today were reported rushing to the Gudbrands valley to turn the tide in battles that may decide control of central Norway.

Severe fighting was reported in frontier dispatches to be in progress southeast of the British-held railroad town of Dombaas, while German forces which had made contact with Germans from Trondheim began a strong flanking movement in an apparent attempt to strike at the Allies from north of the key communications junction

The outcome of the present battling around Dombaas and along the railroad from Dombaas to Stoeren (apparently occupied or surrounded by the Germans) was described by military experts as likely to decide control of all Central Norway communications lines if not of the entire Allied expeditionary thrust south of Trondheim.

According to dispatches to Stockholm the battle for Central Norway developed as follows:

1—A German column striking from Tynset in the Oester valley (not far from Sweden) broke through Allied defenses in the mountains and made contact with Germans moving southward from Trondheim This gave the Germans a grip on the Dombaas-Stoeren railroad, a vital Allied communications line.

2—A British spokesman reported the Germans had occupied Stoeren, a rail junction south of Trondheim, which had been held by the British, but in Berlin it was said the high command did not yet know the fate of Stoeren.

3—Germans continued to pound at British, French and Norwegian defense lines southeast of Dombaas in the Gudbrands valley near Otta, and also were reported attempting to flank the Allied forces there by moving southward from Trondheim and westward through the mountains from the Oester valley to the Dombaas-Stoeren railroad. (In Berlin, the high command said Germans had defeated the Allied forces in the Gudbrands valley and pursued them toward Dombaas.)

4—Both German and Allied forces north of Trondheim, in the Steinkjer sector, were reinforced and messages to Stockholm newspapers said that an Allied attack from the north against Trondheim was expected soon.

5—There was little to indicate a change in the far northern Narvik zone, where the Allied forces have surrounded German troops.

came from Mrs Tom Ford, major of the organizations division. She turned in $3,043 on a $4,000 quota.

Two other divisions making an excellent showing today were public schools, of which W. L. Miller, is major, and which has turned in $1,335 on a $1,550 quota, and the professional division, under the leadership of C N. Shultz, which reported $2,355 on a $3,400 quota.

Other divisions and their reports today were food stores, $1,179; automobile concerns $744; clothing concerns, $1,209; public utilities, $751; officials (city, county, state and federal) $327; construction concerns, $1,228; and financial institutions, $1,962. Pledges made to the big gifts division are absorbed by all other divisions in their proper classifications.

Carl H. Henkel, president of the Community Fund, warned workers against a too great optimism as the result of today's report. He urged every worker to remember that the last $10,000 is the hardest to get and told them that the success or the failure of the drive depended upon each major making his quota.

Smaltz announced that another report meeting would be held tomorrow at the Evergreens.

DECLARED SANE

Couple Charged With Murder Reported Mentally Well.

BELLEFONTAINE—(INS)—At a sanity hearing in Logan county common pleas court, Dr E. L. Hooper, superintendent of the state hospital at Dayton, testified today that in his belief Donald Slater, 18 and Mrs Minnie Jenkins, 47, are sane.

Slater and Mrs. Jenkins, together with the latter's son, Merlin, also 18, are charged with the first degree murder of Mrs. Jenkins's husband, Fred. The court took the testimony under advisement but did not rule whether Slater and Mrs. Jenkins should be brought to trial.

Dr. Hooper said that after a period of observation from March 25 to April 19, he was of the opinion that both the defendants are sane. They were taken to the Dayton hospital after defense counsel requested a sanity hearing.

Mrs. Jenkins' son, Merlin, was also indicted for first degree murder in the slaying of Jenkins at his nearby Huntsville home, but was not given a sanity test.

EXECUTION STAYED

CLEVELAND—(AP)— The court of appeals has stayed indefinitely the execution of Joseph Di Marco and Anthony Cirasole of Brooklyn, N Y., who were sentenced to die in Ohio's electric chair July 26 for the hold-up slaying of Edward Erdody, Euclid avenue furrier. In granting the stay, the court said it would not be able to hear their appeal until fall.

BOMBERS BUSY

Drop Explosives on Namsos 14 Times in Seven Hours.

LONDON—(INS)—German planes bombed the Norwegian port of Namsos seven times in 14 hours yesterday, according to a Reuters (British) dispatch today quoting the Stockholm Aftonbladet correspondent

The dispatch further asserted that the German bombers continued without heeding losses inflicted on accompanying Nazi fighter planes Namsos has been used by the British for troop landings.

BLAME HANDED GERMAN PEOPLE

Chamberlain Outlines British War Attitude in Speech Before Commons.

Stanley, war secretary, refused to answer numerous questions about the war in Norway on the grounds that their replies would not at present be in the public interest.

The government leaders, who had been sharply criticized in the press as a result of setbacks in the Norwegian campaign, were bombarded with questions, especially regarding equipment and supplies for the British troops who had been reported heavily bombed from the air because of lack of anti-aircraft defenses.

Stanley said that the troops sent to Norway were in possession of the full and approved war equipment.

Asked if he would increase the number of machine guns per unit in order to provide protection against low-flying German air attacks, Stanley said "The equipment of a modern battalion comprises a large number of Bren guns."

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Virgil Gaines, 25, and Joseph Harvie, 42, Cincinnati window cleaners, are held today in lieu of $10,000 bond each after pleading innocent to robbery charges in a $3,300 holdup at Newport, Ky., last Oct. 7. Elmer E. Byrd, 23, was arrested at Newport on the same charge.

ALLIES READY TO START BIG OFFENSE SOON

been withdrawn for service in other sectors where the snow is not an element to be contended with.

The war around Lake Snaasa and Steinkjer is a ski-war In this mountainous terrain every experienced Norwegian soldier and every French Alpine chasseur is "another Finn"—a transplanted counterpart of the incredibly courageous fighters across the Baltic who so long held the Russian bear at bay.

During a visit to the foremost front lines at Tangen, where only 500 yards separate the Allies from the Germans, I saw blond Norwegians giants in their camouflaged machine-gun nests and met their chief commander, Col. Ole Getz. Standing on a snow-covered rock, Col. Getz gave me this summary of the situation:

On the western side of the lake, known in Norway as Snaasa sea, the Norwegians have entrenched themselves in strong positions at Stod and Tangen along the railway connecting Steinkjer and Grong. They have successfully defended these posts against attack for the last five days.

The French are equally obstinately holding the line on the other side of the lake toward Namdalseid.

The flank extending to the wild mountains along the Swedish border is held in a hermetically sealed pocket by Norwegian ski-patrols. German attacks against Tangen have been firm and strong, but the Nazis in this sector have no tanks or heavy cannon. They have had to depend upon light artillery

The Norwegians blew up a railroad bridge at Tangen, and this played an important part in halting the German attacks.

Judging from Allied reports, general fighting activities decreased somewhat today But both sides are digging in, and the calm at present is only that which precedes a terrific storm. This is characterized by the crawling life on all of Norway's passable roads.

Until now the initiative has been German, but since Sunday's stabilization of the front line the Allied forces hold the situation in their hands.

It is believed that present operations are aimed solely to prevent the Germans from advancing further until the signal is given for an Allied offensive that will transform once-peaceful Norway into an arena of ruin and death.

Health and morale on the Allied side are of the highest. The chief reason for this lies in the personality and ability of Major General Adrian Carton De Wiart, the Belgian-born, one-eyed, one-armed British commander, already known as the "Mannerheim of the Namsos front."

A proud English soldier, engaged in distribution of anti-aircraft guns at different points along the front, told of this incident when his party arrived near De Wiart's headquarters. They started to dig an emplacement for one of the guns when De Wiart, his ever-present cane crooked over his armless sleeve, came stamping out:

"Take that gun out of here," he barked. "All sorts of enemies have shot at me before without putting me in a coffin. They can fire away this time too."

The moral effect of such an example is clear, and it was eloquently expressed by a British sapper who used to be a mechanic in Manchester who gazed toward the sky and said:

"Our general never was on the losing side and he's certainly not going to be on it now."

Another and perhaps more solid reason for the calm and confident spirit is that German air activity has decreased to such a great extent because of the presence now of Allied planes and anti-aircraft guns. Obviously, I cannot give figures as to the amount of anti-aircraft now emplaced beyond saying that it is considerable. One officer said.

"During the last three days only five German bombers have come over Namsos, and all were booted down."

AUDITOR WAITS HIGH COURT'S RULING ON BLACK ESTATE TAX

County Auditor Norman L Wolfe today was still awaiting a Supreme court decision in the personal tax suit involving the estate of the late Frank B Black which may open the way to collection of several thousand dollars in back taxes in the county

The Black case and two others of similar nature from other sections of the state were heard just three weeks ago by the Supreme court and taken under advisement. A ruling against the executors of the estates might make property owners and executors in the state liable for payment of nearly two billion dollars in personal taxes for the five-year period from 1926 to 1931.

Wolfe said the court's opinion probably was not handed down immediately because the decision in the cases will have far-reaching effects in the state, giving auditors the signal to assess huge sums in back taxes in virtually every county.

The cases involve the "immunity" section of the Ohio property classification law which exempted personal property holders from payment of tax for the five years preceding 1932 if they made a complete return of their property that year. The section was later declared unconstitutional by the high court.

In Richland county, the auditor was under a mandamus from the district appeals court to assess the tax against the Black estate, but the Supreme court halted the proceedings until it hands down a decision.

Counsel for Michael Hallabrin, Mansfield, who started the action here as a taxpayer, contended at the Supreme court hearing that only $40,000 in taxable personal property was listed during the five "immunity" years while the listings should have shown property valued at $1,700,000.

EX-INMATE OF O. S. R. ON WAY TO CITIZENSHIP

Governor Pardons Lorain Man, Who Goes Straight, to Stop Deportation.

A former inmate of the Mansfield Reformatory is on his way to citizenship and free from the pall of deportation as the result of a pardon issued by Governor John W. Bricker, dispatches from Columbus said today.

The man, Serafino di Angelo, of Lorain, was admitted to the reformatory in 1919 on a charge of cutting with intent to kill. He was paroled the following year and obtained his final release in 1921.

The parole commission reported to the governor that Serafino is now a good citizen and is supporting a wife and eight children. He had made application for citizenship papers but had been denied because of his crime. Until the pardon was issued today he faced deportation to Italy by immigration authorities.

Also, today, the governor commuted the life sentence for second degree murder of John Kosinski, Cleveland, a musician, to manslaughter, to make him eligible for parole hearing. Kosinski was convicted of the murder of Tony Bublo, an employe of the safety department of the Union Trust Co.

Bublo was killed in 1924 while trying to intercept two bandits who had robbed Walter Frederick, a grocery store proprietor. Kosinski was admitted to the penitentiary in 1938. At his first trial the jury disagreed.

Kosinski has steadfastly maintained his innocence and refused to offer to plead guilty to manslaughter to obtain a lighter sentence. At his second trial he was convicted. The pardon and parole commission said there was serious doubt of his guilt and quoted testimony by alleged eye witnesses who said Kosinski had not shot Bublo.

WILL ENDORSE INVESTIGATOR

Hardy Announces Action May Be Expected This Week.

The Richland county Republican executive committee will make an endorsement within the next few days for the appointment of an investigator in the county department of aid for aged office, Ralph Hardy, executive committee chairman, said today.

Two investigators' positions are vacant in the office, but it is probable that only one of them will be filled Hardy said. The vacancies were created by the dismissal of Mrs. Nona Darling of Butler, a Democratic appointee, and the resignation of C. L. Shoup of Plymouth, Republican candidate for county commissioner.

Accused Wife Slayer Held Criminally Insane.

SANDUSKY — (AP) — Probate Judge John W. Baxter ordered Philip W. Mischler, 63, accused of killing his wife, Mary, committed to the Lima state hospital for the criminally insane today after hearing two physicians testify that Mischler was suffering from paresis.

Mischler contended at a hearing that he could not remember shooting his wife, but talked freely of events leading up to the time of the slaying. After the killing, Mischler pedaled a bicycle to the police station and surrendered.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 30, 1940.

Faith may move mountains—but a steam shovel will probably expedite the work.

Time marches on, and it seems like long ago that the country was all wrought up about who was to play Scarlett O'Hara.

There's one nice thing about that European war—both sides, according to their broadcasts, are so thoroughly satisfied with their progress.

Destruction or Federation?

ANY AMERICAN who heard the recent speech of Mr. Duff-Cooper, former head of the British Admiralty, must have been impressed with his stern and almost ferocious attitude toward Germany. And that attitude was echoed by his audience.

There was no hint of conciliation. And there was no limiting of the blame for Nazi crimes merely to Hitler and his group. The speaker declared, to an accompaniment of echoing cheers, that the Hitler group in control of the government and the German people themselves were one, and equally guilty, and must pay an equal penalty for their crimes against civilization.

It seems clear that if the Allies win, and this present mood holds, the penalty will be far more severe than was "the Peace of Versailles."

Yet against this attitude is the dream of a federated Europe, as the only remedy for these military and economic wars. It was talked of by the present British government itself early in the war, and was recently set forth eloquently by Jacques Maritain, French author and philosopher. He opposes dismemberment of Germany and maintains that a free union is imperative.

There will be plenty of time, perhaps, to argue the relative merits of these opposing plans, before the war ends. Mr. Maritain's hope of federation, to be acquiesced in by the German nation, is based on his hope of the younger generation of Germans rising above Nazi ideals.

Best Crime Deterrent

CERTAINTY of arrest and punishment has long been regarded by penologists as the best deterrent to crime, and this certainty has been greatly increased by detection methods that have been developed in recent years.

It is unfortunate, however, that these methods are largely reserved for major crimes and that so-called "minor offenses" are not treated more seriously by law enforcement officials, some of whom apparently do not realize that petty offenders are quite likely to develop into dangerous criminals unless stopped in the early stages.

Franklin county is now being disturbed by an increase in the number of armed robberies in Columbus, and Common Pleas Judge King, of that county, recently asserted that in view of the increased number of crimes of violence, he did not deem it wise to be lenient with convicted criminals.

Commenting on this position, the Columbus Dispatch says: "A simple policy of efficient pursuit of criminals, backed up by prompt indictment, effective prosecution and certain sentence, if adhered to continually will automatically bring about a reduction in crime, just as continued enforcement against traffic law violations brings about a reduction of violations and, hence, accidents."

Mansfield's Own Baseball Team

THE major league baseball season is already well under way, but for Mansfield the season opens tomorrow night when the umpire calls "Play Ball" at the Fairground.

That cry will start the 1940 edition of the Mansfield Braves on a quest for the Ohio State league championship and will inaugurate a 130-game schedule, with the Lima Pandas as opening game opposition.

Most of the members of the Mansfield club this year will be newcomers, but if they get away to the right kind of start, the city's baseball fans will undoubtedly make them feel like natives.

Class D ball, while not as fast and scientific as that played by the big league clubs, nevertheless can and does prove exciting entertainment, the kind that has made baseball the nation's No. 1 game.

It is to teams like the Mansfield team and leagues like the Ohio State league, that the major leagues are looking for material. We may have another Ted Williams or Charley Keller in the Braves—who knows.

At any rate, the boys will be out there trying—and here's hoping they start fast and finish on top.

Dollar Exchange

OUR Canadian neighbors are making a big point, this year, of advertising the cheapness of their dollar. Although it has usually been about on a par with ours, so that small exchanges took place on equal terms, the Canadian dollar is rated lately about 16 cents lower than ours. And so far, at least, Canadian prices have not risen in proportion to the dollar's decline.

It is obviously, as the Canadians are telling us, a situation very favorable for American tourists. Gasoline may still cost more in Canada than it does here, but on the whole the tourist's dollar will go farther there than for many years. And if those northern neighbors continue good-natured about their depreciated currency, instead of getting sensitive about it, they will probably have several million American tourists this year.

The incidental revenue will help the Canadians to pay for their war, and also to pay for their liberal imports from the United States. It is seldom that any kind of trading works so well all around.

Class Gift of Lasting Value

AN UNUSUAL class gift was that of the seniors of Southern Illinois Normal university. They presented the school with two acres of wooded land a quarter of a mile from the campus. The tract will be kept wooded and will be used for research and study by the zoology, botany and agriculture departments of the university. If it is suitable for picnics, it may also serve recreational purposes.

The class wasn't able to supply quite all the money needed for purchase of the land, but local business men and a retired minister helped. They knew a good idea when they saw one.

The gift shows originality plus appreciation of the value of permanent woodland. Other educational institutions not already owning woods might well follow this example. Forest-conscious students can be a useful addition to the conservation ranks.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—Do you know . . . that Eddy Duchin's hands have been sculptured, in granite, by Frank Elliscu? . . . That Ben Bernie has been elected "honorary mayor" of Radio City? . . . That the most popular entertainer on Broadway is neither a Romeo nor a Juliet, but a trained seal, named Sharkey, in the new musical "Higher and Higher"? . . . That Robbin Coons, the Hollywood columnist, is a Baton Rouge, La., boy? . . . That Toscanini, Ella Fitzgerald, and the Information Please program were voted most popular by the Hoboes of America?

That Jimmy Durante's nephew works in the photo lab of a NY newspaper? . . . That Phil Baker's sister owns a lingerie shop in Madison avenue? . . . That Jimmy Stewart's sister is in charge of the kids' book counter at Scribners, in 5th avenue? . . . That Aimee Semple McPherson's daughter is doing research for radio? . . . That Billy Rose's sister is a chorus girl? . . . That Barnarr Macfadden's daughter is married to the man who handles the publicity for all the Macfadden publications? . . . That Mildred Bailey, who is Bob Crosby's vocalist, used to live next door to him when they were kids, on Sharpe street, in Spokane, Wash?

* * *

THAT Frances Lederer and Walter Huston walked in to a Chinese restaurant the other night and ordered a chicken sandwich and when it was set before him Lederer threw away the chicken and ate the bread, explaining that he only wanted bread but was too embarrassed to ask for it? . . . That Ruben, the restaurateur, who has made a habit of naming sandwiches after celebrities for the last 15 years, now names drinks after them, including The Jolson Jolt, the Saroyan Sling (three of these and you are able to understand his plays,) and the Barrymore Bite?

That Gray Gordon and his orchestra has replaced Blue Barron and his orchestra in the Green Room of a NY hotel because Gray is just in off a tour and Blue is just leaving on one, and the Green room doesn't care what color your name is, so long as you can play?

That Harold Lamb, who wrote "Ghengis Khan," is really an American, although British army officers insist only an Englishman could have written such a book?

That Rockwell Kent's son is a student at Columbia? . . . That Jimmy Rae, the acrobatic dancer, is a Baltimore boy who became an expert swimmer after studying pharmacy in a college in Illinois? . . . That Basil Fomeen's car is equipped with a horn that plays melancholy gypsy airs?

THAT "Coffee With the Meal," "Lucy Lake," and other screwball verse by Ogden Nash has been recorded by Victor in the prize album of the year? . . . That Hillbilly music is enjoying a tremendous return to popularity? . . . That a lot of high grade pitching will go to waste this year because the Giants' can't hit their way out of a tissuepaper sack? . . . That Lillian Russell's real name was Helen Louise Leonard? . . . That the Rockefellers are planting a lot of European Plane trees in 6th avenue, now that their elms are doing so well in 5th avenue. . . . And that the only people in NY who ought to know how to speak German, French, Italian, Spanish, Croat, Greek, Turkish, Japanese, Chinese, Hawaiian and the Scandinavian plus a little Russian, a little Polish, and a little Czech are—the census takers.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, April 30, 1920.

Report by C. H. Workman, general secretary of Y. M. C. A., showed successful year, with excellent prospects for next year.

Mrs. L. K. Banks and daughter, Ethel returned after spending winter in Florida.

Mrs. William L. Leonard, 61, died at her home, 200 West Third street.

Harry W. Lantz and L. C. Chase went to Columbus to attend state convention of millers.

Mansfield delegation went to county Christian Endeavor convention in Shelby.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, April 30, 1935.

Mrs. A. G. Gerber was chosen president of the Bushnell school Parent-Teachers' association.

James M Neel 63, died.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Bigler observed their 50th wedding anniversary with a dinner party.

Alvin Wise, 37, instructor at the Ohio state reformatory, died.

Dan E. Wolff, 516 Marion avenue, was named president of the South Park-Maple Lake association.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today marks the anniversary of the inauguration in 1789 of George Washington as first president of the United States. He took the oath of office in New York while congress was then sitting.

THE BIG HELPER-OUTER

Allies Want Long-Range Bombers

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Here's one to try on your atlas—or globe—with a ruler or tape measure.

The Allies right now are dickering for release of Uncle Sam's "flying fortress" bombers. They intimate they might buy 50 or 60 of them. The point is, of course, for what?

Up to now our experts had thought this particular type of plane would be useful only in the Western Hemisphere. The so-called medium bombers are able to take off with a full load of bombs, fly from 700 to 800 miles to an objective, drop their bombs, and return with a fair margin of safety as to fuel supply.

The so-called "flying fortress" is able to extend this radius from 800 miles to more than 1,500. But—except for this tremendous increase in range they have no advantage whatever. For the shorter ranges the not so huge bombers are infinitely superior in speed. Two of them would carry just as much of an explosive load as the "flying fortress," and the two would not only cost much less than one big fellow, but would be able, as a result of their greater speed, to have a much better chance both of achieving their objective and of returning safely.

* * *

THE speed of the "medium" bomber is in excess of 350 miles an hour, while that of the "flying fortress" is only about 200 miles an hour. Obviously, in the element of surprise attack, the faster bombers would be much more likely to get through to their objective before defense, either of anti-aircraft guns at the moment of attack, or of fighting planes to meet them en route, could be brought into successful action.

Then there is the question of getting home safely. Obviously again the "flying fortress" would have to have a considerable start en route home to be safe from pursuing fighting planes. Whereas the "medium" bomber would have to have very little start indeed to prevent its being overtaken by fighting planes.

Nor is there any possibility that any of these angles of superiority by the smaller bombers has been overlooked by the foreign experts. They know all about the subject. In fact they come pretty close to knowing all the answers. Realizing this, our experts have been scratching their heads as to why the Allies want the big ones.

* * *

NOW is the time to do your own figuring. Get out your maps, or a globe, with a bit of string if there is no ruler convenient, and figure out where the Allies might be thinking of using these big long-range bombers. You will be surprised, perhaps, to find that the 800-mile radius bombers can reach with ease any part of Germany, or any part of Scandinavia, from existing British air bases. If you will turn to Gibraltar and Malta, not to mention Egypt, you will find that you can draw circles with an 800-mile radius which includes a great deal of territory that might become interesting if the war spreads.

Then if you look at the extreme eastern section of the Mediterranean and remember that the British have a mandate in Palestine, not to mention that huge Allied army in the Near East, and work your 800-mile circle again, you will wonder just why the British, or French, want those 1,500-mile range bombers!

Listen, World!

Get Grim!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

Get grim!
Stop taking
Your Americanism for granted!
Stop thinking that
Your Liberty is assured forever!
Stop believing that
Comfort and conveniences are your natural right!
THEY AREN'T!
Americanism is the rarest
And most expensive phenomenon on earth.
It didn't "just happen."
Nor will it continue to "just happen" . . .
Unless you do plenty about it.

Americanism was born in the hearts
Of oppressed and desperate men.
It was born in fury and frenzy,
Tragedy and tears—
It was bought with shed blood
And shattered flesh—
It didn't come easy—
It didn't come easy—
IT DIDN'T COME EASY!
It came out of the guts
And out of the grimness
Of angry, praying,
Weeping, fighting
Men and Women.

Liberty never comes easy.
Equality never comes easy.
Opportunity never comes easy.
Comfort never comes easy.
These things always come
From the sweat and tears.
The blood and prayers
Of somebody.
And the minute
You stop praying
And bleeding,
Weeping and fighting,
Your liberty stops
And your opportunity
Is a wash-out.

Get grim!
GET GRIM:
The freedom your fathers made
It no longer safe!
The security your mothers created
Is no longer assured!
The comfort and abundance
You have long enjoyed
Are today in jeopardy!
The world has gone back
To the jungle!
You can no longer profit by
Your fathers' labors—
You can no longer rest
On your fathers' laurels—
You can no longer
Eat safe and easy
At America's "free lunch"—
IF YOU WANT TO ENJOY AMERICANISM—
IF YOU WANT TO KEEP AMERICANISM—
YOU MUST GET GRIM:

You must begin to fight
Against other ways of life—
You must begin to sacrifice
For this better way of life—
You must begin to see
That freedom is
A rare and precious thing—
A chancey and fragile thing—
A thing easily lost!—
And you must make up your mind
That it shall not be lost!
YOU . . . MUST . . . GET . . . GRIM!

Cruelty?

A group of humane people protested when it was decided to try out the effect of the new Barlow explosive on "live tissue" by tethering goats on the proving ground.

Well they might. It is inhuman and cruel.

But is it humane to blow the entrails out of a calvary horse on the battlefield? For that matter, is it humane to stick a pig?

Is it humane to do to the pick of the world's young men exactly what the experiments plan to do to the goats?

Well, it is being done every day. But we are used to that. The goat business is a novelty.

We are afraid that in world keyed to dreary acceptance of daily headlines of Transport Sunk, 500 Drown," "Russian Division Wiped Out" and "Bomb Raid Kills 60 Civilians" will react but sluggishly to the sacrifice of these modern scapegoats. Yet even so, can't some less coldblooded but equally effective test be found?—Lima News.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Blood Money."

Used popularly to describe money earned through tremendous expenditure of effort, "blood money" harks back to a feature of social life and customs of long ago.

The reference is to the days when settling the score with an individual who killed another was a concern not so much of society as the relatives of the deceased, who were automatically constituted judge, jury, prosecution and executioner.

To save himself from vengeance, the murderer sometimes would pay money to the family of his victim.

By acceptance of this "blood money," as quitclaims of the sort came to be called, those interested forewent the right to revenge and the offender was absolved from further punishment.

In time, the application of the phrase was extended to a bribe, reward or other inducement, obtained at the cost of another's life, to the proceeds of a sale of that which destroyed the purchaser, or to profits derived from sweating labor or squeezing the public.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—You can write it down as certain that Joseph Patrick Kennedy, one of the most colorful and hard-working envoys ever sent to London, will resign as ambassador to the Court of St. James's just as soon as the president will let him.

Joe is not in very good health, is a bit bored with the job, and also he has been a little too frank for the British. His statements indicating that the empire might be in for a tough time before this war was won, did not sit so very well in London.

Finally, Ambassador Kennedy is in wrong with the British for failing to carry out the traditional duties of Walter Hines Page.

Keeping Cotton King.

NEXT week, Henry Wallace and Milo Perkins will take the first step along a path which some economists think eventually will lead to solving the cotton surplus problem.

This is the cotton stamp plan which on May 7 will stage its world premiere in Memphis, Tennessee. For the present, the plan will operate only in this area, and only on an experimental basis. There will be modest expansion later.

In its simplest terms, the cotton stamp plan is a means of taking idle cotton out of warehouses, making it into shirts, and putting the shirts on the backs of the poor. As with the food stamp plan, the government gives a needy person a free book of stamps in addition to each book that he buys. He uses the stamps to buy cotton goods—any kind of cotton goods at all.

There is a substantial difference between the food and cotton stamp plans. It is that only 10 or 15 cents of every dollar spent through the cotton stamps will go to the producer of cotton.

In the food plan, when a relief-er buys a pound of butter, half the price returns to the farmer who made the butter. But cotton involves spinning and weaving, so the dollar has to be divided among the entire industry.

* * *

Exit Tugwell Theory.

NOBODY in the agriculture department admits it yet, but actually the cotton stamp plan marks an important departure from the original Tugwell-Wallace theory of restricting acreage. Instead of growing less cotton and boosting the price, the effort will be to use more cotton.

What Wallace's experts have been up against is first the fact that Brazil, Argentina, and Peru are cutting in on the curtailed American market. Second, war-born purchases are bound to decline.

Thus no amount of acreage reduction can solve the problem of surpluses—especially when yield per acre continues to increase. The only alternative is to put an extra shirt on the backs of about 10,000,000 persons who live in the domain of King Cotton. In this case Cotton can remain King.

Substitute First Lady.

IT MAY or may not be significent, but the cabinet wife chosen to act as White House hostess, during the absence of Mrs. Roosevelt at the Nobel prize winners' reception, was vivacious Mrs. Robert Jackson, wife of the attorney general.

Her husband has become the closest man in the cabinet to the president, next to Harry Hopkins. And now Mrs. Jackson is subbing for Mrs. Roosevelt. Looks like the Jacksons might be going other places.

Capital Chaff.

MRS. EUGENE MEYER, wife of the Washington Post publisher, and Washington Times Herald publisher Eleanor Patterson have been intermittently warm friends, vigorous enemies. But when Mrs. Patterson arrived at the Meyer reception for the American Society of Newspaper Editors, at least they could not quarrel over clothes. Each was wearing an attractive evening gown of black crepe waist, red sash and a skirt of white chiffon. They were identical—and comparing notes, both laughingly admitted they wore last year's models. . . . These are economical days for publishers. . . . On the night Hitler invaded Norway, his charge d'affaires in Washington, Hans Thomsen, had invited the Norwegian minister to dinner. Naturally the Norwegians sent last minute regrets. Many other guests also regretid. In the end, the dinner was served only to one American couple, one Hungarian couple, and various members of the German embassy hurriedly drafted to fill the empty spaces. . . . The state department official most interested in the invasion of Norway is Jesse E. Saugstad, whose family came from Saugstadvika, near which the armies are now fighting. Saugstadvika means Saugstad Bay. Jesse Saugstad is assistant chief of the international communications division and chief shipping expert of the state department.

Labor Defeat?

SANER heads, such as Joe Martin, on the Republican side of congress don't at all agree with the labor-baiters of the rules committee regarding the wisdom of forcing congressional consideration of the Smith amendments to the National Labor Relations Act.

They figure this will play directly into the hands of the president, help him become the battling champion of the working man once again.

What the rules committee did was unprecedented in congressional history. It took the drastic Smith amendments after the labor committee had turned them down, and placed them, together with other amendments, before the house for consideration.

It happens that both the AFL and the CIO are vehemently opposed to the Smith amendments. Futher, the amendments haven't a chance to be enacted. Even if the house approves them the odds are ten to one that they will never get out of the senate labor committee. Even if by some fluke they should get by the senate, they will run straight into a presidential veto.

This would give Roosevelt the chance for a resounding salvo about the rights of labor and the infamy of the opposition. It would make marvelous campaign ammunition to belabor the GOP and to gag critics in union ranks.

So the only gain the little group of NLRB-haters is likely to derive from its coup is the personal satisfaction of taking a poke at the labor board. To the inside leaders, with their eyes fixed on the coming crucial election, that is too expensive a luxury.

Plowing Time

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ON THE ROAD to town a short while after 7, I counted 20 teams in the fields at work. Along the bordering fields and far inland farmers and their horses moved slowly across the uneven soil.

My neighbor was plowing westward through a heavy sod. The dark bay team was fresh and stepped eagerly ahead while the farmer at the plow-handles struggled after, his shoes weighted with the moistened earth. He threw the furrow slice inward, as did 16 others of those I saw. By this plan dead furrows will be few and from a common center outward to each corner will be no low places where heavy rains may find a start for making gullies. Besides, a field that is not square or rectangular requires careful planning that the last furrow drawn will be at almost equal distance from the border of the field.

Already my neighbor was going west on the third round. The soil looked dark and crumbled easily. A jointer on the plow cut the stiff sod and rolled it to the left, while the moldboard turned it down completely. I heard the ripping of the point even from where I stood. The newly turned moist earth had fragrance in it. Frost, angleworms and grassroots added each its own elusive bit.

Across the valley from the road one field extended beyond the hilltop. The farmer and his team disappeared over the horizon. From that distance each furrow fitted neatly into place like long narrow strands of worsted cloth. The deep green border stood out in bold contrast to the darkness of the mould.

Farther on a farmer turned his sheep upon the unplowed portion of the meadow. The ewes were much concerned about their offspring. Each bleated a low toned answer to the high pitched nervous voice of her lamb. And when they met and identity was sure, each lambkin knelt on soiled front knees and feasted vigorously until the mother stepped away, disturbed. I saw them bite the lush grass to the whited roots which their eager nibbling showed was sweeter.

The country air is fresh and cool, the sun is shining. The lark mounts from her grassy bed and sings; the bluebird warbles on the white thorn tree. Along the unkept fencerows wildflowers spring, and each in his own field, yet all in rhythm, the farmers are plowing.

CONSIDER FIRE PROTECTION FOR TOWNSHIP AREA

Council Committee to Meet With Madison, Boulevards Officials This Week.

The problem of furnishing fire protection for hundreds of families in Madison township and the newly formed village of South Boulevards will be taken under consideration this week when a special council committee meets with officials of both communities to draft contracts.

Fred Miller, chairman of city council's finance committee and head of the special committee, which includes C. N. Shultz and Harry Emmons, said today that meetings would be held this week to negotiate contracts with both Madison township trustees and South Boulevard officials.

Miller said the committee hoped to complete arrangements at one meeting with each of the groups so the legislation could be submitted at the May 7 meeting of council for approval.

Both communities have been receiving fire protection from the Mansfield fire department under an agreement drafted two years ago by which Madison trustees pay $2,000.

Solicitor Rules.

South Boulevard has since been established as a separate political sub-division and City Solicitor Marion D. Ward has advised city officials that separate agreements must be made to replace the contract which expired April 1.

Madison trustees have already asked council to consider a reduction in the annual rate, pointing out that South Boulevards is now a separate sub-division and is willing to finance its own protection.

South Boulevards officials have requested the city to consider furnishing the village with fire protection and announced they were willing to negotiate a separate contract

COMMUNICABLE DISEASE DROPS IN CITY, COUNTY

First Quarter Reports Show 50 Per Cent Reduction With 112 Cases on Record.

Communicable diseases in Richland county, exclusive of Mansfield and Shelby, during the first three months of this year showed nearly a 50 per cent decrease from the first quarter figures of last year, health department records disclosed today.

A total of 112 cases of contagious diseases were reported to the department in the first quarter as compared to 209 cases in the corresponding period in 1939, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, said.

Largest decrease was shown in mumps. A total of 77 cases were reported in the county during January, February and March last year while not a single case has made its appearance so far this year.

Whooping cough dropped from 18 cases in 1939 to eight during the first three months of 1940 while scarlet feved decreased from 53 to 48 this year.

The first quarter report showed a total of 31 cases of chickenpox in Richland county this year against 39 during the first quarter last year.

There was also a noticeable decrease in pneumonia.

Births reported to the health department also showed a decided decrease, a total of 46 reported so far this year as compared with 62 for the same period in 1939. Deaths increased from 75 last year to 84 during the first three months this year.

FORMAL DINNER PARTY CLOSES CLUB SEASON

Monday Study Group Has Affair at Leland; Little Flower Members Hear Program on "American Music."

ANOTHER final party of the club season was held last night when members of the Monday Study club were entertained with a formal dinner bridge at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Arrangements were in charge of Miss Edith Moore, Mrs. George Gaalaas and Miss Frances Conn.

Bridge was in play at five tables with prizes going to Mrs. Howard Wenning, Mrs. Nicholas White, Miss Florence Conn, Mrs. Lloyd Brown and Mrs. E. P. Yocum. The long table at which dinner was served was decorated with two bowls of pink sweet peas and white tapers. Activities of the club will be resumed in the autumn.

The outstanding feature of the evening's program last night when members of the Little Flower Study club met with Miss Veronica Hanley, West First street, was the singing and playing by Mrs. L. J. Smith of an original composition, "The Girlfriend of My Dreams" written by her 17-year-old son, Lawrence.

Mrs. Smith gave the paper entitled "American Music" before the 10 members present. She traced the development of music from the Indian, Negro and folk songs including mountaineer, hobo and cowboy. She pointed out that Stephen Foster was known as the father of the ballad, while MacDowell originated our so-called parlor music.

By way of conclusion she played "Minuet" by J. H. Rogers; "Grande Polka de Concert" by Homer Newton Bartlett, "The Indian Lodge" by MacDowell, "The Singing Hills," currently popular hit song, and "When You Wish Upon a Star" by Harline from the animated movie "Pinnochio"

Following the program luncheon was served, and Mrs. Jerome Hanley presided at the table. The annual meeting, election and installation of officers will be held May 13 with Miss Marie Hecht. A covered-dish dinner will be served at that time.

PLAY BRIDGE.

Members of the Charter Bridgers club met last evening with Mrs. Howard Hyatt in Pavonia. The diversion was in play at two tables, with prizes going to the hostess, Mrs. Arthur Coleman and Mrs. Rufus Dickson. Mrs. Russell Remy will have the next meeting, May 13, at her home on the Ashland road.

War Inspired

Mrs. Emma Stoodt, 174 Park avenue west, has returned to her home after spending the past month with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Stoodt, Arlington, Va.

Entertain Guest At Bunco Party Held At White's

Mrs. Della Lee was a guest of the Jolly Lot club yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. James White, 93 South Foster street. Mrs. Gladys Norris and Mrs. Orville Smith were associate hostesses for the meeting, which was attended by 14 regular members and three new members.

Bunco was in play during the afternoon, and prizes were awarded to Mrs. George Hostetter, Mrs. Z. E. Broach, Mrs. Frank Faugl and Mrs. L. C. Smith. Refreshments were served at the close of the games.

During the business session, the group decided to meet on the fourth Wednesday of each month in the future. A covered-dish dinner at the Bushnell school will be an event of May 22, with Mrs. Harold Beech and Mrs. Bert Weaver in charge.

Present Piano, Voice Selections

Another in the series of monthly recitals of pupils of the Hall-Hazeltine studio was given at the studio Saturday evening before a group of friends and relatives. The young people are the students of Thurza Hazeltine and Margaret Hall, and they gave vocal and piano selections.

Elaine Marlow and David Weimer were featured in a two-piano arrangement, while Helen Ann Troll and Pauline Hockensmith played a piano duet.

Others appearing were Barbara Shrewsberry, Jeannie Kroegher, Nancy Twitchell, Joan Porter, David Weimer, Frances Carter, Margaret Crowl, Louise Walker, Ada Mae Harbaugh and Teddy Wendt

Covered-Dish Party, Bridge Monday Event

A covered-dish dinner followed by bridge were the features of the guest party of the United Commercial Travelers' auxiliary yesterday at North Lake park pavilion Guests who were presented with awards were Mrs. Bruce Rogers, Mrs. William Karrer, and Mrs. George Sommers.

The members who were winners were Mrs. George Marks and Mrs. Kent Rummel. Mrs. Roy Weber and Mrs. John Kennedy were the hostesses yesterday. Plans were made to meet again May 10 in the lodge rooms.

MANSFIELDERS WED IN APRIL SERVICES

Jacob Graves Brings Bride Back to City After Marriage In Oklahoma; Mrs. Etta Johnson Married to Ashland Man.

SPRINGTIME nuptial events, and the announcement of coming marriages offer both substantial and interesting fare for the society pages these days. Upon their arrival in Mansfield this past week-end a pair of newlyweds made announcement of their wedding date.

The bride, Miss Eunice Oakley, Fordyce, Okla., returned here with her husband, Jacob L. Graves, 139 Woodland avenue, following a wedding trip through Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky. Miss Oakley and Mr. Graves were married April 12 at Fordyce.

For her marriage the former Miss Oakley, who taught school in the Oklahoma town, was attired in a navy blue travel ensemble. Gargaret Graves, daughter of the bridegroom, and Clyde Oakley, brother of the bride, were the attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Graves are now at home at the Woodland avenue address.

* * *

Mrs. Etta Johnson, 20 South Benton street, became the bride of O. A. Boyd of Ashland Saturday evening at 6 p. m. at the parsonage of the First Christian church. Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger officiated for the service which was attended by the immediate families.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pifer of Wooster were the bridal attendants.

The bride and her attendant wore frocks of navy blue with dusty rose accessories. Their corsages were of Talisman roses.

Following the wedding a dinner was served for 10 at the Susie Janis home, after which a reception was held. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Boyd will be at home to friends in Ashland. He is employed at the Myers Pump Manufacturing company there.

* * *

PLAN TEA.

Plans were announced today for a tea from 3 to 5 p. m. at the Y. W. C. A. Sunday afternoon for members of the Northcentral Ohio Music Teachers' association. All teachers in the 12 counties comprising the district have been invited to attend. Mrs. Margaret McNeil, Dayton, state president, will be the guest speaker.

* * *

HAVE BENEFIT.

The Hedges Mothersingers sponsored a benefit card party last evening in the school annex. The diversion was in play at 16 tables. The party was given to raise funds to cover expenses for the club members, when they attend the state P. T. A. convention in Cincinnati next fall. Arrangements were in charge of Mrs E K Tingley, Mrs. George Berg and Mrs. Guy Shawk.

16 SCIENTISTS
Reveal Great Discovery About
CONSTIPATION
Tests at World-Famous Hospital Show How To Help Nature Produce Her Own Gentle, Complete "Daily" Bowel Action!

NEW YORK: Constipation sufferers rejoice! For now violent cathartics and laxatives and harsh "roughage"-products, many of which are habit forming and are often irritating to bowel lining—can be avoided.

You can now actually help Nature produce her own gentle, complete "daily" bowel movements—thanks to the patient study of 16 Scientists.

You see if waste matter in the colon isn't kept moist it becomes hard, dry, caked and results in constipation. These scientists discovered that a "little daily dose" of Kruschen actually keeps this waste matter moist, soft and easy to expel. Also acts as a mild antacid and kidney diuretic.

There is no nausea, no griping, no violence with Kruschen. Hospital tests report: "Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Inexpensive! Only a trifle for a jar that lasts weeks. Over 215,000,000 jars of Kruschen have been sold throut the world. Kruschen must do the work!

Father Gave Up Children

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Letters continued to pour into this column in answer to the mother who wrote that, unable to support her children by working as a charwoman, she had decided reluctantly to give them for adoption. Scores of correspondents have written urging her to keep the children and telling how they, similarly situated, managed.

A man writes he could not bear to hear his children ask for food when there was none. After reading his letter, no one could consider him wordly-minded.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"My situation was not unlike that of the woman who wrote you she was faced with the tragedy of giving up two well-loved children for adoption, or forcing them to exist on the scant wages she made as a charwoman.

"Eleven years ago, my wife died. We were in the beginning of the depression. Eventually I was laid off from the construction company for which I worked with hundreds of other men. The nightmare of those days is still with me. Often I'd sing my two little girls to sleep, or tell them stories —I had no supper to give them.

"For myself I could take it, but it was horrible to have the children tell me they were hungry. My wife's family had always disliked me, feeling that I was inferior to them. They did their best to break up our marriage, but my wife loved me and we were happy in our own way. At last I swallowed my pride and wrote to my wife's mother who had ignored me since I married her daughter.

"She agreed to take the children but only on consideration that I would make no further claim on them and not see them oftener than one afternoon a month. When I would go to see them, shabbily dressed and apologetic, I saw they had been weaned from me completely.

"I recall one time when I went dinnerless for two days to take them some candy and toys, my mother-in-law told me sharply not to bring any more gifts, that the children were adequately provided with everything.

"Well, Miss Fairfax, I began to realize that the children were becoming ashamed of their father, and that visit once a month was painful for them and for me. They have completely outgrown me and consider me a failure. So I felt it would be better for them to forget their father entirely, or perhaps remember the happy times we had when their mother was living. I shall not go into what this sacrifice cost me.

"Today I have a job that pays a fraction over a hundred a month. I don't drink or dissipate, nor have I ever re-married. I'm as economical as possible and hope to leave the children a little when my time is up.

"In considering things, I believe I did right in giving my children advantages they could not have had from me. And I honestly believe that a parent who clings to his children when he is no longer capable of caring for them is guilty of gross self-indulgence. How would two little girls have grown up, with nothing but the streets for their playgrounds? Inadequate food and no one to look after them, for I did not get this small job of $100 a month until they had been separated from me, and in the care of the grandmother, for four years.

FAILURE."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

AS I HEARD my father's instructions to the guards, I mentally praised him for the completeness and the rapidity with which he had changed his plans since we had discovered the secret of the spiral stairway.

Just how he was going to "use as bait" the two of Leslie's gang who had been captured in the attic and were still imprisoned in the cellar, I had only the vaguest idea, and when he turned from the guards to speak to us, I gave him the same close attention which Lillian and Dicky accorded him.

"I do not think we are needed here any longer," he said. "Suppose we go back to my quarters."

He gestured to Lillian and me to precede him, and as he followed us with Dicky, I heard him tell the guards that one of them was to come down and notify him the instant they heard or saw any movement of the secret door. After that he spoke no more until we came again to his suite, where Miss Whitlock was placidly knitting. She rose as we entered and closely scrutinized my father.

"I don't believe you're overdoing it, at that," she said. "Please continue to exercise caution until I see you again. I'll look in again after a bit."

"Thank you," my father said courteously, and then she was gone, and we were sitting in front of him much, I told myself, like a circle of schoolboys before a teacher.

"We haven't much time," he began, looking at me, "but you and Lillian are entitled to know the plan I have for dealing with those men downstairs."

He paused and poured himself a glass of water from a carafe on the table at his side. My eyes were fixed on him as he drank, and I was infinitely relieved to see that his hand was steady.

"Thanks to your interview with Miss Carman," he said, "there is no need of interrogating those two prisoners downstairs concerning the manner in which they gained access to the attic. The vital thing now is to make sure that they do not guess our own knowledge of the secret, and relay their conjecture to Jack Leslie. Therefore, if you approve, Richard, we will go down to the cellar and impress upon those worthies, in as dramatic fashion as possible, that we have found the weak spot in our electrified fence where they must have come into the grounds, and the unguarded window through which they must have come into the house. Then I shall dismiss them, warning them not to try breaking through again, for we have guarded all the weak places in our defenses. We will then take them well down the road toward the Leslie camp and turn them loose. I do not think Leslie will make another sortie on the attic, even though he believes we no longer are watching it, until he has finished negotiations for the delivery of Noel and Mary into his hands."

"What do you mean by 'we' will take them down the road?" Lillian demanded. "If you think—"

"I mean in the editorial sense only, my dear," he said, smiling at her truculence. "I shall leave the 'leg work' to younger men."

"That's better," she said, mollified. "I imagine Harry will be back tonight with those costumes and the impersonators of Noel and Mary. Things are moving to a climax, aren't they?"

"It is almost upon us, I think," my father said gravely, and I put the question I had asked him more than once.

"If the climax is so near, will it be all right to have that rehearsal for Mary tomorrow morning?"

"Absolutely," he returned promptly. "In the first place, Jack Leslie is a creature of darkness. He never will come near this place in the daylight. Darkness is his best friend. Go right on with the rehearsal, and don't have any concern whatever about Leslie. I promise to keep you advised of every development."

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE DOUBLE DUCK

LETTING the opponents take a trick, when you hold the top card, is called a "hold-up" if it is in their long suit, and a "duck" if it is yours. In one case you let the trick go for the purpose of blocking their suit, in the other you do it to help set up your own string. And, just as there is a double hold-up when you let them win twice in their suit, so there is a double-duck play which is sometimes vital to bringing in your own length.

3 ♠	4 ♦	4 ♠

One of the 4-Spade declarers in a duplicate game ruffed the opening diamond lead, dropped trumps in three rounds, then played for an even division of the outstanding clubs. He reckoned that thus he would lose one trick in clubs and two in hearts. When the clubs failed to break, he was set one trick.

At another table, Morgan Howard, keen mathmetician, saw that a 3-2 division of the missing five hearts was more likely than a 3-3 split of the six clubs, and played accordingly. Following the opening diamond ruff and three trump tricks, he led a heart and let East win it, took the returned club and led a second heart, allowing West to win. After taking the next club return, he led to the heart A, and on the last two hearts discarded his two losing clubs, thus making not only his contract, but an extra trick as well. He had given a splendid example of the "double duck," which is a rare play indeed at a suit contract but very useful.

Of course East and West could have profited by making a sacrifice bid of 5-Diamonds, which might or might not have been left in—but that is another story.

Tomorrow's Problem.

What gaudy-looking play becomes automatic while South runs his set-up tricks at 3-No Trump on this deal, following a lead of the club 5?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, May 1.

A day of rich return for industry, fidelity and sound judgment is forecast from the prevailing lunar aspects. The mind will be alert, astute and keen for novelty, innovation and fresh methods of handling old and perhaps static situations with surprising success. The keyed-up mental faculties are sustained by solid, profound and dependable intuitions, which will combine to give stability and purpose to both old and new affairs, and perhaps increase the possessions. It is a time for digging in for enduring foundations.

Those whose birthday it is should find themselves launched in a year in which much stability and reality may be attained in the fortunes and the affairs. While the mental forces are alert, brilliant and even spectacular, with reliable flashes of intuition or sharp vision, these are sustained by sound logic and good judgment. In the long run there should be definite achievement and lasting success. Property and investments should meet stable values.

A child born on this day, while having a keen, sagacious and sparkling intellect, with deep intuitions and vivid imagination, with trends toward the creative and experimental, may also have sterling and dependable qualities to insure recognition and lasting accomplishment.

Seven In Every Ten Need Glasses

By MME. QUI VIVE.

An authority on the subject says that seven out of every ten women should be wearing glasses and only three of the seven are wearing them. The four unwise ones are groping and stumbling because of vanity; they believe that specs detract from charm. They forget that good vision is necessary for health and efficiency. Without it one is beset with frazzled nerves, jumpy temper, inability to concentrate.

If you happen to be one of the beauty wailers who bemoan a long nose, you can use a straight, dowset nose piece which will conceal the upper portion, making it appear considerably shorter. In that case glasses are a beauty asset, not a liability.

By the same principles, the short nose gains length from a highly arched bridge. On the concavely curved nose a set-away bridge is used; and, if you have a fine, royal, Roman beak, the bridge is set low so that the sharp upper inward curve is hidden.

The short, broad nose must have a high, wide bridge since a narrow one would make it look even wider, and cut-away lenses are the happy choice. The low, wide bridge is recommended for the long, thin nose.

The shape of the face is considered carefully. Narrow lenses are not as becoming to thin faces as larger, rounded lenses.

Young girls will love the pale flesh-toned frames that scarcely show at all.

Rimless glasses can be individually designed to suit the wearer. You can have them cut to suit your own ideas of what is best for you. They are especially suitable for the career girl because they are dignified, inconspicuous, in excellent taste.

LISTS 3 VIEWS IN CITY TRAFFIC ROUTNG PLANS

Chairman Says Few Streets Carrying Most of Traffic, Congestion Results.

Editor's Note:—This is the second in a series of weekly articles on Mansfield traffic problems being written by chairman of various sub-committees of the Citizens' Traffic committee.

TRAFFIC ROUTING
By W. W. PURDY
(Chairman of Rerouting Committee)

The routing of traffic is being approached with the following views first, the interest of the general public is paramount; second, that all streets are dedicated to the whole public; third, no individual, group or business has any vested rights in the traveling public that requires that the public travel any particular route through the city.

Observation indicates that a very few streets are carrying most of the traffic and are consequently congested. A great part of city traffic originates within the city and does not leave the city. In addition to the city traffic a transport survey some years back showed the following traffic count outside the city limits.

From the east and northeast routes 42, 30 and 39 showed a total of 8189 vehicles per day. From the west routes 30-N, and 30-S, showed a total traffic count of 3,839 vehicles a day. From the north and northwest routes 13 and 39 showed a total traffic count of 3,361 vehicles per day. From the south routes 13 and 42 showed a total traffic count of 4,992 vehicles a day. Since this traffic survey was made the state estimates that the traffic has increased 10 per cent.

Practically all state highway traffic passes through the city on two east and west streets and on two north and south streets with most of the north-south traffic concentrated on Main street. Most of this heavy traffic passes around Central Park where it is joined by a heavy concentration of city traffic.

2 Ways To Do It.

A recitation of these facts makes seem obvious that any solution of our traffic ills require that the portion of traveling public which does not want to reach points on congested streets be permitted to travel on streets which are less congested and which permit quicker passage through the city. This may be accomplished by rerouting or providing alternate routes.

Investigation reveals that with one or two exceptions our principal streets were built 15 or more years ago and that no particular part of the city has been favored with heavy streets and no particular part with light streets.

Some streets over which heavy traffic is being routed at present have sandstone base while others have concrete base. In most cases the wearing surface is brick or brick resurfaced with bituminous mixture.

No particular street or the residents thereon are entitled to any special privilege.

Plan Cost Millions.

Akron is an example of a nearby city which had a similar situation with regard to through streets. This situation has been improved there by the expenditure of millions of dollars for setting back property lines and cutting back buildings on a few streets.

The situation in Mansfield can be improved by community support and a limited amount of resurfacing and widening in the future than legislative action to ture and no immediate expense change routing.

The traffic committee can only suggest changes and they welcome suggestions and support for measures designed to improve traffic conditions in Mansfield.

BUILD DRIVE TO GARBAGE PLANT

Construction of a new concrete roadway to the garbage disposal plant, started last December but halted due to cold weather, was begun today, it was announced by City Engineer W. C. Statler.

The project calls for the construction of a 20-foot concrete pavement from Park avenue east road to the disposal plant, a distance of about 1,000 feet, to replace a cinder drive over which approximately 30,000 vehicles pass annually.

Total cost of the construction has been estimated at $7,700, financed largely through surplus materials which accumulated last year from WPA street projects. The city will contribute a small portion of the cost.

Statler said a skeleton crew of workmen went on the job yesterday grading the roadbed. It is expected that with materials scheduled on the project today that pouring of the concrete will start within the next couple days.

Statler explained that with good weather the new pavement should be finished and ready for traffic by June 15.

SIGN UP FOR FALL

The 9-A students at Johnny Appleseed junior high school this morning signed for the courses they will take when they enter Senior high school next fall. Signing was in charge of Jesse Beer, George Sherman, V. H. Oberlander, Miss Emma G. Waring and Miss Grace Essex of the Senior high faculty.

TALKS TO STUDENTS

Members of the economics classes of Senior high school had as their guest speaker Monday, Russell S. Moore, chairman of the public relations for the Midland Mutual Life Insurance company, of Columbus.

He talked to the groups on the functions of modern life insurance. Arrangements were in charge of Charles A. Robertson.

SEEKS BIDS ON WEED MOWING

Board of Commissioners to Spend Up to $5,782 to Clear Roads of Growths.

County commissioners will ask for bids Wednesday for weed mowing along 249 miles of county roads in 12 townships this summer.

Cost of two mowings during the summer was estimated at $5,782. Weeds must be cut the first time by June 15 and the last time by Aug. 31.

Bids will be received at the commissioners' office in the courthouse until May 15.

Townships for which contracts will be let and the approximate mileages and mowing costs are:

Plymouth, 21, $431; Cass, 27, $540; Bloominggrove, 21, $436; Franklin, 21, $431; Springfield, 30, $606; Mifflin, 16, $325; Washington, 29, $745; Monroe, 21, $540; Troy, 12, $308; Perry, 16, $417; Jefferson, 19, $487; Worthington, 20, $514.

Trustees in Butler, Madison, Weller, Sharon, Sandusky and Jackson townships will keep the weeds mowed in their townships without assistance from the county, Engineer H. C. Sword said.

ACCIDENT BAIT

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— Aged and very young pedestrians are the most prone to become the victims of traffic accidents, according to the Keystone Automobile club. Approximately 66 per cent of children under four years of age killed last year in automobile accidents were walking in the streets, while pedestrians constituted 66.3 per cent of the fatalities in the group 65 years and over, a club survey showed.

WARNS ANGLERS OF 'NO FISHING' SPOTS IN AREA

Kimmel Says Three Sections of Streams in Richland Vicinity Restricted.

Fishing season is here at last, and Mansfield and Richland county anglers were reminded today by C. I. Kimmel, county game warden, that not all streams in the immediate area of the county are on the "open season" list.

Kimmel pointed out that the state conservation department has designated propagation areas in several sections of the county. These, he said, are strictly "no fishing" grounds and those ignoring the areas are subjecting themselves to arrest and fines.

Kimmel related there have been at least four instances in which fishermen had encroached on the propagantion areas and were penalized through court action. These persons were arraigned here in municipal court yesterday.

There are three spots in this vicinity where the "no fishing" rule prevails, Kimmel said. They are located on the Clear Fork at Pickel bridge, between Bellville and Butler, and from Alexander bridge east of Newville, and at the Charles Mill Dam, reservoir.

Closed For 200 Feet.

The Clear Fork at Pickel bridge is closed to anglers from a spot 200 feet below the bridge and a half mile down stream, Kimmel pointed out. This will be closed for the balance of the season.

The stream from Alexander bridge is closed to the Pleasant Hill dam, and there is no fishing allowed at Charles Mill reservoir. The last two spots will be open however after July 1.

Charles Mill dam south of route 30 is open to fishermen, according to Kimmel, but the dam north of route 30 is closed for a fish and game sanctuary.

Persons caught fishing in the propagation areas are subject to fine of from $10 to $50 and costs, Kimmel pointed out. He also said that bass season in this area closes today but reopens again June 16.

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.
